Hokum Sometimes Useful. Let the Spirits Talk. Science and Superstition. Small Thefts, Dangerous.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

BISHOP STEWART, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Chicago, wishes that Thanksgiving could be freed from 'a hokum of patriotism."

The learned bishop does not admire "a certain kind of American that goes blowing around the world thanking God that this country has all the gold and democracy there is."

NEVERTHELESS, there is value in "patriotic hokum." For "to convince others be yourself convinced." Several kinds of religions "go blowing around the world," thanking God that they possess all the true religion and all the genuine salvation there is, and those are the religions that make converts.

BRITAIN CONTEMPLATES changing a law that makes practice of spiritualism and its beliefs an offense.

Such a man as Sir Oliver Lodge, one of the greatest living scientists, could be jailed or "put in the stocks in the local market place as a rogue and a vagabond" for asking a medium to give him spirit news.

BELIEF THAT GHOSTS or spirits return through trillions of miles of the ether or "continuum," as Jeans and other Einstein disciples prefer to call it, coming all that distance only to say "Mamma is happy," may seem silly to some. But men should be allowed to believe, in a religious way, what they please. It is good intellectual practice. The savage needs his idol with green eyes and a pink nose, a higher religious concept calls for four unpleasant horsemen, and the house of fire. If Spiritualists want ghosts that lay on tambourines, lift tables, disgorge ectoplasm and say "Mamma is happy," there should be no interference.

ON THE 300TH anniversary of Johann Kepler's death, Einstein tells the Prussian Academy of Science what wonders Kepler performed, overcoming poverty, worry and making clear to human beings the laws of geometry and time.

Much progress in human intelligence has been made since Kepler's day. To hold the Emperor's favor, Kepler had to tell the imperial fortune and pretend to predict the future by astrology, which he knew to be nonsense.

AND EVEN THE great Tycho Brahe, who mapped the heavens without a telescope, and took Kepler for his assistant when Kepler was 29, had his superstitions. He kept with him an idiot, that crouched at his feet at the table, eating scraps thrown to him.

And when the idiot uttered meaningless sounds, Tycho Brahe caused all his other guests to be silent, believing the idiot talk was inspired.

THERE IS A GOOD deal of scientific talk, so called, today, that might well have been uttered by Tycho Brahe's idiot. Some of it "refers to time that began at a certain point in the past," and some of it drivels about space that curves on itself, and is therefore not infinite.

IN CHICAGO two men, one with four children, one with two, both out of work for a long time, tried to steal turkeys, and were as unsuccessful as they had been trying to get jobs. Policemen killed Fred Bernard as he fled from a butcher shop, with the turkey that never reached his four children. Joseph Martin was killed by the owner of a butcher shop, and his two children will have a funeral, and no turkey. Property, turkeys included, must be protected. How marvelous it would be, if we could attend to criminals in the million dollar class, as well as we attend to turkey thieves.

GERMANY LOST the war, but is not losing time in this peace.

Using foreign capital, partly American, and 27,000 workmen, Germans will build 500,000 tons of new commercial ships. Modern war kills men, but no longer kills women, that create the men. It does not kill old men, and scientists are usually beyond the military age.

Germany has her scientists, to create a new industrial Germany; her women, to create the new German generation, and is better off, on the whole, than some of those that "won the war."

THE GOVERNMENT at Washington seems not very proud of its World Court proposition and propaganda. You read that arrangements will be made to defer any action on the protocol. It will be mentioned to the Senate, with the request, "Don't do anything about it just now; let it go over. It might cause unpleasant discussion." The administration evidently knows, in a vague sort of way, that the people do not agree with international bankers and do not want this country tied up in any international network.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT and northern federal judges say that home brewing of beer and making wine from grape juice are legal. The federal judge at Tampa, Fla., says manufacturing or possessing any alcoholic beverage in a home is illegal.

Government agencies, judges, enforcement officers and others should agree on what the law is, if possible. To have different sets of laws for different states would make confusion worse.

MIAMI HOP AVIATRIX OVERDUE

Strong Winds Reported in Mrs. Keith-Miller's Path In Flight From Havana

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, who took off from Havana early today, expecting to reach Miami about 11 a. m., had not arrived here at 1:17, eastern standard time this afternoon.

Mrs. Keith-Miller carried no radio and strong winds were reported on the route by Pan-American Airways.

Mrs. Keith-Miller reached Havana Sunday in three hops from Pittsburgh.

Unfavorable weather conditions had held up the start of her return flight to Pittsburgh from Havana since Sunday.

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—On the third leg of a transcontinental plane speed record attempt, Miss Ruth Nichols, Rye, N. Y., society aviatrix, today hopped off for Albuquerque, N. M.

Hampered by heavy snow between Columbus and St. Louis, Miss Nichols set her ship down here yesterday at 3:50 o'clock, Central standard time, having chalked up 8 hours and 16 minutes of elapsed time from New York, where the flight began last Monday. Over the same route, Mrs. Keith Miller, the present holder of the women's transcontinental flight record, required 13 hours.

HOOVER TO IGNORE DRY ISSUE

Lacking Wickersham Report, President's Message Will Say Little on Prohibition

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—President Hoover completed his message to Congress and sent it to the printer today without the benefit of any advice from the Wickersham Commission for the controversial matter of prohibition.

As forecast, the commission has been unable to adjust its own conflicting views to the point of giving Mr. Hoover a majority report to guide him in his recommendations to Congress. Consequently, it is expected that the annual Presidential message on the state of the nation will have little to say concerning the most discussed subject in the country.

MANY ADJOURNMENTS

The commission is in adjournment until December 8. Life for the commissioners has been a steady series of adjournments for some months. Unable to make much headway in the formal sessions, Chairman Wickersham has all but abandoned them and turned to informal and private discussion of the most controversial phase of the commission's work.

What progress, if any, has been made in these discussions is not apparent. Chairman Wickersham preserves a smiling exterior and answers no questions. The rift in the commission's ranks, however, is well known, and the belief persists that there will be more than one report finally emanating from it.

CONGRESS IMPATIENT

Meanwhile, the returning Congress is showing signs of considerable impatience over the commission's inability to arrive at some conclusions. Representative Shreve (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the appropriations

RELIEF DUE FROM COLD TOMORROW

Mercury Reaches 8 Degrees, To Go Lower Tonight; One Man Dies of Exposure

With prospects of relief tomorrow, Pittsburgh and surrounding districts today continued in the grip of the severe cold wave, which exacted a heavy toll:

1—Three dead, one from exposure, two from burns.

2—Seventy-five persons routed by fires into near-zero weather.

3—Thousands driven to seek shelter in quarters of relief organizations downtown, while a stream of food and fuel flowed into homes of needy.

4—Weather Bureau predicted between 5 and 10 degrees tonight, followed by rising temperature, snow or rain Saturday night and Sunday.

The bitter cold, intensified by a slashing wind, sent the mercury to 8 above at the weather bureau and to near-zero in outlying districts today. One death from exposure was reported.

Thousands of men were cared for by relief organizations with increasing demands as the frigid spell gave little indication of abating today.

The weather bureau predicted fair, with a low temperature of between 5 and 10 tonight, followed by increasing cloudiness and warmer, with snow or rain, Saturday night and Sunday.

DIES FROM EXPOSURE

The death of Andrew Ruchpest, 35, of 15 North Fourth street, Duquesne, was attributed to exposure, according to the coroner's office. A friend found his body in his bedroom yesterday.

En route to work early this morning, Ernest Smith, 46, a Negro, of 202 Auburn street, East End, slipped on the icy pavement and suffered injuries to his left side. The accident occurred at Frankstown avenue and Fifth avenue extension. He was treated at the Pittsburgh Hospital and taken home.

ZERO REPORTED

Unofficial zero temperatures were reported in Swissvale and in the Bloomfield district this morning. Several points in the outlying sections of the county also reported zero temperatures. Wil-

One Jobless Man Asks Permit to Sell Apples

The charities branch of the City Department of Welfare, reported today that up to noon it had received only one application from the jobless for a permit to sell apples on the street.

The plan was arranged last week by James M. Clark, public safety director and the Apple Growers' Exchange. The plan is to go into effect Monday for a one-month trial.

Alex Murdock, of the Apple Growers' Exchange, assured Director Clark that at no time will the price be more than $2 a box. There are about 80 apples to a box, which are to be sold at five cents each. The Red Cross, Family Welfare Association, Catholic Charities, Salvation Army, Jewish Family Welfare and Lutheran Inner-Mission are co-operating with the city welfare body in examining applicants and passing on their worthiness.

Ishbel Hears Shaw Predict Vote Defeat for Father

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—If Ishbel MacDonald is the sort of girl who talks politics late at night she had much to say when she got back to No. 10 Downing street last night.

For Ishbel presided at a meeting of the Fabian Society while George Bernard Shaw gave his annual lecture. The famous Irish Socialist, dramatist and wit, with no idea whatever of being funny, declared defeat stared the MacDonald government in the face at the next national elections. He said:

"If the present government goes before the country on its record, it will confront a thoroughly disappointed electorate. The Labor party had to make large promises, but at present finds the country in a very serious situation."

He said Great Britain was sitting on a political volcano and unless changes in the present parliamentary system were made they might be made violently as had been the case in Russia.

Another Big Meal Christmas Day; 'Till Then, Apples

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

That's over. Now we go back to our normal pursuits that lead to so many indictments.

It required a presidential nomination to make the boys give us a 24-hour armistice.

But we've got to have a Thanksgiving Day to let the machine guns cool off.

Crime isn't so bad in America. It's the investigations that are giving this country a bad name.

The nation's biggest business men are on a board that will study racketeering.

So it looks like big business will get bigger.

Our next big meal will be on Christmas. We can fill in the next month with apples.

Yesterday was a good day. Everybody had turkey and even Ethel Barrymore forgot to have her picture taken with a piece of Melba toast and an olive.

We're over the hill. All we've got to do is to hang on going around the curves, make our investigations milder and pull Senator Borah away from that third session.

We admit that things have been jumbled up. But Einstein gets here next week and he will explain everything.

WILL H. HAYS WEDS WIDOW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Will H. Hays, czar of moviedom, and former postmaster general, was married yesterday to Mrs. Jessie Herron Stutesman, widow of a former American minister to Bolivia.

The wedding, a quiet ceremony, was attended only by relatives of the two, including Hays' son, Will H., Jr.; his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hays, of Sullivan, Ind., and their two sons.

CONGRESS LEADERS AGREE ON FARMS AND JOBLESS RELIEF

FEW BILLS LIKELY AT SESSION

Democrat-Insurgent Threats May Upset Program for 'Lame-Duck' Gathering

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—After 10 days of private conferences, the opposing leaders of Congress were agreed today only on the enactment of legislative relief for agriculture and the unemployed at the "lame duck" session, which convenes Monday.

The thinly veiled threat of Insurgents and Democrats, while protesting against Filibusters, to force final action by the House on the Norris bill, providing for government operation of the Muscle Shoals project, may add that measure to the program. Otherwise, unless compromise agreements are worked out in debate, the legislative output of the final session of the Hoover "Honeymoon" Congress will be remarkably light.

FARM RELIEF PROGRAM

The administration's farm relief program includes:

1. Appropriation of from $150,000,000 to $250,000,000 for the Federal Farm Board to continue its stabilization program.

2. Passage of a $60,000,000 feed, seed, fertilizer and gasoline bill, to aid farmers in drought-stricken states.

3. Appropriation of a fund for the construction of new roads in states, affected by unemployment, without demanding state contributions.

4. Speeding the government's public building program, so work will start at once on authorized projects.

There will be little opposition to this program, once administration leaders throw some light on the activities and future plans of the Federal Farm Board. The only objection voiced so far has been against the veil of secrecy thrown around the board's plans for handling and disposing of surplus wheat bought in the open market. The program will likely be approved.

MINORITY DEMANDS

Beside these administration farm relief measures, the Democrats and insurgents have demanded enactment of:

1. The Wagner unemployment bill, creating a federal reserve construction fund for use in unemployment emergencies and the establishment of a nation-wide organization for stabilizing employment.

2. The Norris resolution, submitting to the states a constitutional amendment eliminating "lame duck" sessions of Congress and advancing the inauguration of the president to January.

3. The Norris bill, providing for government operation of the Muscle Shoals project, but likely providing for private operation of the fertilizer plant.

These measures have passed the Senate only to be sidetracked or abandoned in the House. The coalition has been promised a vote in the House on the Norris plan for Muscle Shoals, which probably will result in the termination of the 10-year controversy over that project. The fate of the Wagner bills and the "lame duck" resolution is doubtful.

COURT ISSUE SIDETRACKED

Prohibition legislation, aside from appropriations for enforcement, and the new World Court protocol appear to be sidetracked for the short session. Any effort to secure passage of dry legislation or approval of the World Court would block all legislation and force a special session of the new Congress. There have been rumors that the President will send the World Court plan to the Senate, understanding in advance no action will be taken until next December.

The creature is believed by residents to have lived in prehistoric times, and had a snout similar to the beak of a pelican, with a head shaped much like that of an elephant.

Several streets were roped off for sledridding, by order of Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh.

FEW ACCIDENTS

Although the highways were coated with ice and motoring was extremely dangerous, few accidents were reported. There were many reports of frozen radiators and water pipes over the holiday. Along the highways and city streets numerous cars were found stranded.

A number of football games in communities throughout the city and county were played with great difficulty or postponed due to the weather. The contests that were staged had small audiences.

Fifty members of the Pittsburgh Motor Club reported their machines had been frozen by the extreme cold. Most highways were open, but were ice-covered in some places, making travel dangerous.

HUSBAND SLAIN, WIFE SHOT

BLAIRSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—John Bellas, 39, was killed by a charge from a shotgun and his wife was wounded slightly at their home in Heshbon, a mining village, today after they had refused to admit Jess Hays, 24, a neighbor, to the house, according to state police.

Hays disappeared following the shooting and a search was being made for him. A coroner's jury held him responsible for the killing.

Authorities said Hays was at the Bellas home last night and that the men had quarreled.

100 IN 'JUNGLE' SPURN TREAT

Although free transportation to a warm meal was offered the unemployed men living in "The Jungle" along the Banksville road, it is estimated that about 100 of them remained in their storebox huts.

Inspector Charles T. Cahill and a squad of police from Mt. Washington station took 52 men in patrols to the relief headquarters of the Helping Hand in Water street. They were given a hot breakfast and supplied with smokes.

Three of the men were in need of hopsital treatment and were put to bed. Most of them were insufficiently clothed, many of them in rags, with their feet swathed in burlap.

After police left, quite a few of the members of the colony who had slipped away, returned. Through one of the large coal companies, there is plenty of fuel for the shanties.

Michael Scanlon, former "boss" of the colony, has been made a floor superintendent at the Helping Hand. More than 2,000 men were given breakfast by the Helping Hand this morning.

NEW COLD WAVE DUE FROM CANADA

Midwest Records Six Deaths, Much Suffering from Record Low Temperatures

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The midwest, shivering from unseasonably low temperatures that have brought suffering and death to a score or more of persons, was still feeling the effects of the cold snap today as word came that another disturbance was developing in Northern Alberta, in Canada. The Canadian storm was reported moving southeastward.

Snow, which has already handicapped transportation in some sections of the Midwest, was predicted for tomorrow for many sections, with a moderation of temperature, however, in Illinois, Indiana, upper and lower Michigan, Eastern Wisconsin, Eastern Missouri and Eastern Iowa.

Reports from various sections last night told of further suffering from the cold. Cleveland, with 8 above, had its coldest Thanksgiving in 50 years, with more than 2,400 automobiles stalled in the snow. Lima was the cold spot of Ohio, however, with 6 below zero.

Other reports, meanwhile, told of additions to the number of dead resulting directly and indirectly from the storm. In Chicago two men were found victims of exposure, another was reported frozen on a freight train at Hammond, Ind., while a fourth met a similar fate at Springfield, O. A woman was killed near La Fontaine, Ind., when her automobile ploughed into a snowdrift and then hit a telephone pole, and in Cincinnati a boy was killed, coasting.

The Pas, Manitoba, again was the coldest spot in North America with 16 below yesterday.

Snow Obstructs 3 State Highways

HARRISBURG, Nov. 28.—Snow for the first time this season has closed two state roads, the Highway Department reported today. Another was restricted to half-width traffic because of a fall of snow from 24 to 36 inches in Erie and Crawford counties.

The two roads closed were from Conneaut Lake to the Ohio state line, and from Conneautville to Conneaut Lake. The highway from Erie to Cambridge Springs was open for only one-way travel.

Maintenance crews and snow plows were kept busy keeping the roads open for traffic in adjoining counties.

CIRCUS TRAIN BURNS, 14 DIE

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Charred ruins of gaily painted circus cars at Guadalupe, Guanajuato, were searched today for traces of 20 persons unaccounted for after the wreck and fire which demolished the show train.

Fourteen persons are known dead. Twenty-one are in hospitals at nearby Irapuato, where several are expected to die of burns.

Many animals of the circus menagerie were burned to death. Others, including some elephants, are loose on the mountainside, where posses are hunting them. The elephants have left a trail of destruction.

Nettleton Misses Junior Flight Record, Wins Fame As Youngest 'Caterpillar'

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Instead of holding a new junior transcontinental flight record, Gerald Nettleton, 20-year-old Toledo, O., aviator, was enrolled today as the youngest member of the famed "Caterpillar Club."

Nettleton made a 10,000 foot parachute drop to escape from a blinding rain and snow storm which encompassed his plane near here yesterday as he was within less than an hour of finishing his transcontinental flight.

DINES AT RANCH

He drifted gently to earth near a ranch house as his abandoned plane crashed a mile away. Except for being rain-soaked and extremely cold, Nettleton was unhurt. He made his way to a ranch house and topped off his adventure with a big Thanksgiving dinner. He explained:

"The weather was 'sloppy'—rain, fog and snow. I couldn't see 10 feet. The instruments 'froze,' and, since I couldn't see, there was only one thing to do, and that was to jump.

HOOVER EVADES DRY ISSUE

sub-committee that has to do with prohibition funds, announced he was in favor of holding up all appropriations for prohibition enforcement until the Wickersham commission submits its report.

Representative James M. Beck (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, a former solicitor general and accounted the foremost constitutional lawyer in Congress, has been advocating suspension of all enforcement appropriations as the easiest method of "killing prohibition."

DRYS CRITICAL

Even the drys themselves, who all along have regarded the Wickersham commission with hopeful and kindly eyes, are disposed now to be critical of its delays and lack of action. If the commission is not able to place something before the President and Congress by January 1, it is quite probable there will be an oratorical storm of no small proportions.

Reports that the commission would recommend low-voltage beer continued to float about the Capitol, but without any confirmation from responsible sources. These rumors, however, have aroused the drys.

The W. C. T. U. came forth with a statement today proclaiming that 4 per cent beer is intoxicating in fact, and citing a report from the Carnegie Institution to that effect. The organization went a bit further than usual in that it declared the Supreme Court never would permit beer to be made under the Eighteenth amendment.

1928 Jugo-Slavian Premier Is Dead

BELGRADE, Nov. 28.—(INS.)—Velya Vukichevich, premier of Jugo-Slavia during the stormy year of 1928 when political antagonism resulted in the shooting of three deputies by another, is dead. Coolidge Lauds Policy Banning 'Blood Money'

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 28.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Some years ago a prominent man attracted considerable attention by refusing to purchase some garments at a low price because he considered the needle women who made them were underpaid. He did not care to profit by their distress. He felt that what he might have in such a transaction was blood money wrung from the unfortunate. He was right.

Calvin Coolidge

There will be general satisfaction in learning that our country through the national government is adopting a like attitude. We wish to protect our own wage earners, our agriculture and industry from the results of dumping produce on our markets at a price with which they could not compete. But the policy has a deeper significance than that. We are unwilling to profit by the distress of foreign people. We do not want their blood money. Our efforts are not only to protect our own people from cheap goods, which President McKinley said meant cheap men, but we propose to set up a standard that will discourage other nations from exploiting their people by producing cheap goods. Our policy requires fair wages for both domestic and foreign production. We have no market for blood and tears.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

GANGSTER GIVES UP TO SEE SON, HURT

WINS MERCY FROM STERN JUDGE

Joe Saltis Leaves Safe Retreat on Learning of Lad's Injury; Allowed Bail

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Fate, ever changing men's destinies, brought Big Joe Saltis, "public enemy" and retired "back-of-the-yards" beer baron, back to Chicago asking for and receiving mercy from Judge John H. Lyle, militant foe of gangsters.

Wednesday night Saltis, once described as "the cruelist gangster" in Chicago, was secure from the law at his sanctuary at Winter, Wis., defying police to bring him to the Chicago bar of justice as a vagrant.

AUTO INJURES SON

But, in the form of a motor car, Fate stepped in to change his mind.

The telephone at Saltis' hangout, rang Wednesday night, and conversation that followed brought the information that his 14-year-old son, Emil, had been taken to a Chicago hospital, critically injured. One car had knocked him down, and another had run over him, crushing his skull. Saltis came back to Chicago and informed his attorney:

"I'll surrender to the law, but I'd like a chance to make bond. I want to be with my boy, but I don't want to disgrace him by being arrested in the same room with him."

TELEPHONES JUDGE

Burke telephoned the judge. He said:

"I know you habitually jail the people you class as 'public enemies.' I know you show them as little quarter as you can—but in a case like this—well, judge, the boy may be dying this very minute."

Judge Lyle fixed the bond at $30,000 and set the case ahead for next Tuesday.

SOVIET OFFERS PLOT EVIDENCE

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—N. B. Krilenko, the most feared prosecutor in all Soviet Russia, today called unexpected witnesses in the dramatic trial of eight men charged with plotting to overthrow the Soviet government.

He was not expected to do this. The thousands of Communists who have been listening to this trial over the radio thought that when the last of the defendants confessed and repented yesterday, the four judges would move immediately to pass sentence.

It was expected the witnesses' statements would be received in secret session, for the court ruled yesterday that there was to be no more open testimony regarding "friendly foreign powers."

PARIS, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Matin, influential Paris newspaper, today demanded that the French government break off diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia in answer to accusations at the trial of eight Russian engineers that this government has plotted armed intervention to destroy the Moscow regime.

Prisoners Spurn Hot Dogs, Get Turkey

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Evanston's honor has been saved.

It happened after a platter of steaming "hot dogs" was sent in to a half dozen hoodlums in the Evanston jail yesterday for their Thanksgiving dinner. The spokesman for the prisoners said:

"Make it turkey or we won't eat, and the next time we'll go to jail in Chicago, where they feed men right."

Capt. Charles C. F. Paasch thought about it for a while, concluded that "Evanston's honor was at stake" and took up a collection, with which turkey dinners were provided.

LADY CYNTHIA IN GANDHI RIOT

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Lady Cynthia Mosley, wife of the millionaire Socialist, Sir Oswald Mosley, and daughter of the late Lord Curzon and the former Mary Leiter, of Chicago, was involved yesterday with other members of Parliament in stirring scenes during which fist fights occurred at a meeting in support of Indian freedom.

An Indian in the audience attacked James Marley, M. P., who presided at the meeting organized by the Commonwealth of India League, and for a time a battle raged on the platform.

Other fights broke out in the crowded hall. Members of the audience usurped the chair and made speeches.

The disturbance quieted when a policeman threatened to clear the hall, but broke out again when a speaker referred to Mahatma Gandhi as the greatest figure of modern times, and some one in the audience shouted "Swine!"

Lady Cynthia tried to talk but was shouted down.

THE HAGUE, Holland, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Frank B. Kellogg, former American secretary of state, who yesterday was awarded the Nobel peace prize for 1929, said today he would go to Oslo to receive the award, but the date of his departure would depend entirely upon the volume of his work as a judge of the World Court.

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Frank B. Kellogg, former American secretary of state, has been awarded the Nobel peace prize for 1929.

The peace prize award for 1930, announced simultaneously by the prize committee here, goes to Dr. Nathan Soderblom, archbishop of Upsala, Sweden, and pro-chancellor of the University of Upsala since 1914. The awards have a value this year of about $48,000.

Kellogg, in conjunction with Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, drew up the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact, which virtually every civilized nation now has signed.

Dr. Soderblom received the 1930 award in recognition of his peace propaganda and efforts through church unions.

But the artist interrupted the interview. He asked:

"Try to keep the mouth still for a few moments, Mr. Mencken. Remember I am not doing a motion picture."

COURT FIGHT ON STATION LIKELY

Threat of an appeal to the Superior Court, in case of an adverse decision by the Public Service Commission, was made today at a hearing on the Pennsylvania new terminal plan, by E. W. Smith, attorney for the Bylesby Corporation, several subsidiaries of which are fighting the vacation and relocation of several streets to make way for the terminal building.

Smith asked City Clerk Robert Clark to bring all records of City Council dealing with the terminal plan to the hearing and demanded that they be included as testimony.

Objection was made by A. M. Donnan, attorney for the Pennsylvania, and Smith explained that an appeal surely would follow a decision by the commission which would cause utilities concerns fighting the plan to relocate their plants.

The agreement entered into by the city and the Pennsylvania makes no provision for payment of damages for such relocations. The Bylesby interests and the Bell Telephone Company contend that the proposed changes will cost them hundreds of thousands of dollars and they want the railroad to pay the expense.

Commissioners Samuel Walker and Charles H. Young said the full board would pass on the admission of the Council records.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company called as a witness today John M. Rice, consulting engineer, to show what provision has been made to handle traffic while the terminal is being built. Rice said that the traffic rerouting plans are not wholly adequate to care for the congestion that must result when several streets are closed for widening and relocation.

The commissioners announced that it would not be possible to end the hearings today, as had originally been planned.

WELCOME FOOD

Police Give Aid to Family Housed in Chicken Coop

Forced to seek shelter in a rebuilt chicken coop, the family of Joseph Bauers, 29, enjoyed a better Thanksgiving than they had expected, when the Fraternal Order of Police Relief Committee provided a week's supply of groceries, a ton of coal, clothing and shoes.

Bauers, a painter, has been out of work for months, he told the committee. Only a few weeks ago he was released from a hospital. A month ago his wife, Mrs. Catherine Bauers, and their children, Virginia, 6; Joseph, 4, and Betty, 3, and himself were evicted from their home at 38 Venture street, when their rent was three months in arrears.

Patrolmen Charles McClelland and George Moulter, of the relief committee, found them living in the former chicken coop, which had been offered the family by a friend, Harry Culp. Bauers had cleaned the place and furnished it with water, gas and the pieces of furniture they were permitted to take with them after their eviction.

He was sentenced to serve four months in jail.

Trio Begs Jail Bed, Robs Marshal, Loots Stores

DOWNEY, Idaho, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Marshal Dan Ware listened to pleas of four men that they be given a warm place and finally admitted them to the city jail.

In the morning Mike Wakeley found the marshal locked securely in a cell. A hack saw was used to liberate the officer. The seekers after a warm bed were missing.

So was $21 of the marshal's money, and $1,200 worth of merchandise taken from several business houses.

3-SHIFT SYSTEM CREATES JOBS IN RUSSIA

Soviet Under 5-Year Plan Is Country of Too Few Workers, too Much Work

(Russia, peopled by millions, has no unemployment. The problem, rather, is that of too much work and too few workers. It is noted in this, the first of three articles on life as it is lived in the Soviets, that in Russia living is a business running on schedule, with the result that "jobs" are plentiful and factories hum 24 hours in the day.)

By CHARMION VON WIEGAND, Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—America may have its unemployment and its standards of living commensurate with one's position in life. Russia has a single standard of living, and more than enough work to "go 'round."

Any picture of the Soviet union painted today, after many trips to the inland cities and inspections of the great industrializations being accomplished under the five-year plan, must include the hammer and sickle in every hand—with new hammers and new sickles thrust into every new hand that manifests itself. There is enough work—there are too few workers.

SEEK MILLION WORKERS

"Tempa! Tempo!" is the cry of the Bolsheviks speeding up the industry of their country. The old Asiatic laziness has been prodded out of existence by the five-day week, the double and triple-shift working program and the never ceasing wheels of Russia's innumerable factories.

Things have come to such a pass that more than 500,000 women are to be drawn into industry within the next year, and attempts will be made to increase this new band of "shock workers" to 1,000,000. These women will be recruited from the home, from the kitchen and nursery, where they have stayed while other women have gone forward "in business."

These million new housewives who will join the workers' ranks with their husbands, have more children than the present women in the regiments of industry, and the problem of handling their children alone creates new jobs. New kitchens must be built on the style of the Fabrika Kuckhina in Moscow, and for this alone $65,000,000 will be appropriated from the housing fund of the Soviet Union.

TWO-SHIFT PLAN THEATERS

If you would not harbor the idea of having someone work at your desk, fumbling among your papers, while you slept the night away, vision the double or triple-shift system now in vogue in Moscow. Many clubs, public baths, motion picture and legitimate theaters are passing into the two-shift plan.

Up to now, banks, transport departments, courts and administrative offices have worked only on the single shift system. The latest maneuver is to force the business offices to operate on the two-shift system, providing work for double the amount of workers. One organization works from 9 in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon; the second from 4 o'clock until 11 in the night.

The reason for this is twofold; the troublesome housing problem in the cities may be partially solved (two people on different shifts in a single room), and the budget for the building of office buildings during 1931, being large, can be reduced with the surplus used for workers' dwellings or the purchase of necessary raw materials for industry. This not to mention decrease of payments for upkeep, and the saving occasioned by the use of a single set of office equipment by two forces.

Arguments against the dual-shift system are numerous in the cause of organization and inter-office communication, but the fact remains that more jobs are created, the housing situation is remedied somewhat and unemployment is a fantasy.

REWARD OR SPUR

An amusing story is told concerning one group of actors. In addition to their regular performances, they were asked to give a special show at one large factory, because, said the factory delegate:

"Don't you know that our factory has successfully fulfilled its quota for the first two years of the five-year plan? You must be anxious to reward the workers with a splendid performance."

Hardly had the actors acquiesced when another factory delegate arrived. He, too, asked a special performance in his factory. The actors asked "why?" and he responded:

"Don't you know our factory has fallen behind in the quota for the first two years of the five-year plan? Of course, you will want to cheer up the workers and give them zest with a splendid performance."

Despite humorous situations and more trying complications, the dual shift system is being introduced everywhere. Even restaurants are going on two shifts, and factory eating houses supply good hot dinners for the workers of both shifts.

TWO GIRLS DIE, 75 ROUTED BY FIRES

Dunbar routed; estimated loss $40,000.

Natrona Heights—Home of Stanley Levdoski, Sixth street, destroyed, eight persons routed and loss estimated at $10,000; two firemen overcome.

Restaurant and rooming house, Grant street and Second avenue—One man hurt, 17 roomers routed; estimated loss $3,500.

Whitaker—Homes of Ignatz Grazyb and Earl Harriston destroyed; two hurt; 10 routed; estimated damage $5,000.

CHILD'S CLOTHES IGNITE

The Prosch child was playing in her home yesterday while the Thanksgiving dinner was being prepared. Her clothing ignited from an open gas stove, according to the coroner's report. She suffered burns which caused her death in the hospital this morning.

The Weathers girl was trapped in a bedroom of her home when fire destroyed it. Her mother, Mrs. Lettie Weathers, was burned on the face and hands when she attempted a rescue. Two other children, William, 10, and Elizabeth, 8, also were burned. They were rescued by firemen and are confined to the Passavant Hospital.

$100,000 LOSS IN BRADDOCK

One woman collapsed, about 35 persons were forced from their homes and $100,000 damage was caused by flames which whipped through a movie theater, a furniture store and a clothing store in the Lytle Block, Braddock, early today.

The ruins of the theater blazed forth again shortly before noon, police said, but the flames were put out before any more damage was done.

Mrs. James Owens, who conducts a rooming house at 855 Braddock avenue, collapsed after running to the street when the alarm was sounded, and was taken to the Braddock General Hospital.

Starting in the Family Theater, 849 Braddock avenue, the flames spread to the People's Clothing Store, 851 Braddock avenue, and thence to the Exchange Furniture Company, 853 Braddock avenue.

FAMILIES ROUTED

Among the families forced to flee were Mr. and Mrs. Gus Mclasanos, their children, Frantz, Patina, John and Angelo; Mr. and Mrs. Frank McKivitz; Mr. and Mrs. James McCullum, Evelyn, 11, Eddie and Earl McCollum; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Manspeaker, Kenneth, Louis, Zelda, and Edward Manspeaker; and another family whose name was not learned, all of whom resided in the apartment behind Mrs. Owen's boarding house, on George street.

Fire broke out anew in the Lytle Block while firemen were answering a $1,500 blaze in a three-family apartment at Corey avenue and Margaretta street. Mrs. Nicholas La Luke and three children and Mrs. James Swope and six children fled.

Five persons were forced to flee from their apartment when fire destroyed the Sible department store, damaged three others and threatened an entire business block in Main street, Bentleyville. Firemen from Bentleyville and Charleroi fought the flames several hours. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

The interior of a three-story brick building, at 211 Grant street, was destroyed early today by fire, which threatened the Gulf Refining Company service station. Seventeen persons were routed from adjoining rooming houses. The blaze started in the Busy Bee Restaurant on the first floor of the building, police say, and spread to the restaurant of Woy Ling Low on the second floor. George Nicholson, 37, a cook in the Busy Bee Restaurant, was burned on the face and hands.

Two hours after the fire had been extinguished, sparks on an adjoining roof blazed up and firemen were recalled.

Six small children and their parents were made homeless when their two-story brick residence in Sixth street, Natrona Heights, was destroyed yesterday morning. The father, Stanley Levdoski and his family escaped to the street. Two firemen were overcome.

Two boys were injured and two homes destroyed in Connect street, Whitaker, yesterday. The fire originated in the home of Ignatz Grazyb and spread to that of Earl Harriston, a Negro. Harriston, his wife and eight children were routed. They are being cared for by Salvation Army workers.

Seward Fletcher, 12, of 157 Arkansas avenue, stepped on a live wire which had been burned from a pole. B. A. Muse, 16, of Duquesne Junction, was burned while helping firemen.

AUTO, GARAGE DESTROYED

The automobile and garage in the rear of the home of M. J. Bloom, 3001 Versailles avenue, McKeesport, were destroyed late yesterday. Capt. William Hanson, of the McKeesport department, estimated the damage at $600. Slight damage resulted from a fire in the automobile of P. D. Smith, address unknown, while the machine was parked in Sixth street, near Penn avenue, early today.

Fire starting from an overheated furnace in the home of George P. Millar at 611 Dorchester avenue, Brookline, did slight damage between the walls of the home early this morning. Mr. Millar smelled smoke and called the fire department before the flames made much headway.

The roof of the home of C. W. Cooper, 1847 Plainview avenue, today was damaged by fire of undetermined origin which for a time threatened the residence of William J. Sands, Jr., at 1843 Plainview avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper and their daughter were forced from the house.

No. 8 engine company was called out today when a stranger hired by Clyde Gladney, North St. Clair and Rural streets, to thaw out the radiator of his truck, built a fire under the motor, igniting the machine. Damage was placed at $75. The stranger disappeared.

Frank Mathern and his wife were compelled to leave their two-story frame dwelling at Eighteenth and Main streets, Sharpsburg, early today when fire of undetermined origin caused $300 damage.

Suspect in Lingle Murder on Trial

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(INS.)—Frank Foster, gangster follower of Jack Zuta, vice chieftain who is said to have plotted the assassination of Alfred Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, went on trial today charged with the reporter's murder.

The actual picking of the jury, however, will not begin until Monday, it was decided at a conference of counsel for the defense and the state.

Doll Lady Looks Forward To Busy Christmas Season

Dear Little Girls:

Yesterday was a holiday and I was down at the Sun-Telegraph office all alone, my assistant doll ladies being away for the day. No, I wasn't exactly alone because I was surrounded by dozens of "Tickletoes" dollies. And they all seemed to be talking to me.

One big red-haired, brown-eyed dolly seemed to be sighing and saying:

"I wonder where I am going to be for Christmas. I hope that I'll get a real nice little girl for a playmate—some little girl with a nice home and happy parents. I don't want everything in the world—just happiness and good care."

And then there was a big blue-eyed "Tickletoes" with golden hair. Her ideas were different. She seemed to say:

"I hope you'll get me into some rich little girl's home, where I'll be the best doll of all her dollies and they'll all have to agree that I am the most beautiful dolly in the world."

Well, I thought the blue-eyed, blonde "Tickletoes" was a little mite selfish, but no matter where she goes for Christmas, she is going to make some little girl very happy.

All of my dollies are so big and beautiful that I had a hard time getting away from them yesterday, but I put every one of them to sleep and tiptoed out of the room. I'll bet they were surprised when they awakened and found that I had gone.

I expect a busy day today. Hundreds of little girls have already earned a "Tickletoes" and I have sent for them to come in and get their dolly. What a happy crowd of youngsters I'll meet and they'll all go home hugging their "Tickletoes."

If you want one of these big beautiful dollies all for your very own, clip the coupon, send it to me today and by return mail you'll get a letter telling you how easy it is to get "Tickletoes" for a playmate. Goodby for today.

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH
DOLL LADY.

SYRIA CHILDREN TO SEE MOVIES

Mr. Landefeld

Children of Syria Mosque members and their little friends will be treated to "An Afternoon in Movieland" tomorrow afternoon at the Mosque. Potentate Charles L. Landefeld, in charge of the affair, has announced.

Among films to be shown are an "Our Gang" comedy, "Little Red Riding Hood," "Aesop's Fables" and "Cinderella and the Silver Slipper." Between the movies there will be juvenile vaudeville acts presented by professional stage children and members of the Syria Mosque junior group.

SPAN CONTRACT UNSANCTIONED

A contract entered into between the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the county commissioners of Cambria County through court action, for the maintenance and repair of a viaduct bridge in South Fork, was without court authority, Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby stated, when the contract was brought to the attention of the commission for approval.

The county, through court proceedings, referred the question to the board of viewers, and the railroad went along with the proposition. No harm was done, it was indicated, but Commissioner Shelby remarked that such contracts are purely a matter for the commission's consideration. The railroad and South Fork Borough had originally agreed to divide the costs of maintenance, but found it was a hardship. The county and the railroad, on request of the borough, agreed to pay for the maintenance.

Br-rr-r! winter is here!

What to do about colds

MEDICAL men have come to an interesting conclusion about colds. They say that lubrication of the nasal passages prevents deadly germs from getting a foothold. Interesting to Mr. Average Man, because this is something he can do for himself with the doctor's full sanction.

Every night before retiring introduce a little "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly into the nostrils. It's absolutely safe. It coats the delicate nasal membranes and protects them.

Equally good for the throat, too. Just take half a teaspoonful, if your throat is husky or irritated. Feel the relief. And don't worry about swallowing it. That's good for you because it has a slightly laxative effect. Just what you need if you feel a cold coming on.

Maybe you can go through the whole winter without getting colds if you'll only take this simple, safe precaution. Get a jar or tube of "Vaseline" Jelly now. It costs only a few cents at the nearest drug store.

PARDON FINAL HOPE OF IRENE

NEW CASTLE, Nov. 28.—Irene Schroeder and Walter Glenn Dague look to the State Board of Pardons as their last hope to escape the electric chair.

Attorneys Thomas W. Dickey and Ben Jarrett, defense counsel, are preparing a lengthy record of the case to be filed with the application which must be in the hands of the state pardon board not later than December 3, to be acted upon at the next meeting.

The record for the pardon board's consideration will contain complete accounts of Irene's and Dague's lives. Circumstances which might have prompted the careers of crime will be exemplified together with a resume of legal reasons why the pair should be given extraordinary consideration in their appeal for mercy.

No date has been set for the execution, but it is believed Gov. John S. Fisher will act sometime during the first part of next month. Should there be unexpected delay in filing the application for pardon, Attorney Jarrett said, he felt the execution would be postponed long enough to give the pardon board time to act.

RARE EXHIBITS LOST IN FIRE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Fire swept the north side of historic Horticultural Hall in Fairmount Park, ruining almost priceless exhibits and specimens and for a time threatening to destroy the entire building.

Officials were unable to estimate the damage caused by smoke and heat to the rare plants and specimens which had been collected from all parts of the world since the structure was built for the centennial celebration in 1876.

The blaze, starting in a tower at the north side of the building, swept downward into the large arborium. Police expressed the belief that a lighted cigaret, tossed away by a visitor, started the fire.

James J. Hearn, assistant superintendent of police, died of a heart attack while directing a squad of policemen at the scene of the fire. He was 65.

AUTOS KILL 188 IN OCTOBER

With 188 killed and 3,779 injured, the 1930 peak for automobile accidents in Pennsylvania was reached during October, the Pittsburgh Motor Club announced. It was the largest number of fatalities in the state since December, 1929, when 289 were killed.

Figures for the first 10 months of this year show that 1,530 have been killed and 33,088 injured. Corresponding figures for last year show 1,517 were killed and 29,211 injured. For the entire year of 1929, a total of 1,992 were killed and 35,648 injured.

Robert L. Wickline, chairman of the Highway Safety Committee of the motor club, stated that it is likely the total fatalities for this year will fall short of the 1929 figure, although personal injury totals will be greater.

OLD CITY HALL LEASE ASKED

An offer has been submitted to county commissioners to take a 20 to 30 year lease on the old City Hall property, Smithfield street and Oliver avenue, at $40,000 a year.

It is understood that if the deal is completed, a group of business men will erect a building for mercantile purposes. B. Thorpe & Co., real estate dealers, submitted the offer, but did not make public the name of their client.

The offer included a six-year cancellation clause. The old City Hall property has been on the market for some time, and county authorities a anxious to sell it, since the county will have no direct use for it after the completion of the new County Building.

Acid, Gassy Stomach of Years Ended Quick. In Great Shape Now!

"My Stomach Is In Great Shape Now," Says the User of New Prescription ACIDINE

"Had been an acid stomach sufferer for years," says Howard T. Simon, of Merchantville, N. J. "Decided to give ACIDINE a trial about two months ago. All my old ailments have disappeared and my stomach is in great shape now."

That's what thousands say about this amazing new prescription. ACIDINE. Quick relief is yours, too—as quick and to burning acid stomach, gnawing pains, before and after eating, belching, gas, bloating, heartburn or dizziness, if you take ACIDINE.

ACIDINE is entirely different from other known remedies. Contains Japtase, an effective starch digestant, which quickly liquefies 400 times its own weight of starchy food, under proper conditions. Five other scientific ingredients neutralize excess acid, stop gas formation and soothe irritated stomach lining. Stop gas and headache from acidity. No other known remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach troubles.

If you are suffering acid stomach disorder, which causes you endless misery and prevents you eating and drinking what you want and if gas causes you sleepless nights, you owe it to yourself to try ACIDINE at once. Buy it at any drug store. If, after testing it, you are not more than pleased, return the ACIDINE and the druggist will refund your money. You take no chance. The risk is ours, the benefit yours. Don't be any longer without the joy ACIDINE will bring you—get it today.

Driver 'Shoots Up' Own Truck After Robber Scare

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Jumpy nerves were blamed by police for a story told by Arthur Sanders, Negro truck driver, that three men had attempted to hold him up as he was transporting air mail to Bolling Field.

Police said Sanders had withdrawn his statement and admitted the story of armed robbers was imaginative. He was quoted as saying he became frightened when a car speeded by him and fired a shot from his revolver which entered his own truck.

5 POLICE HURT IN BERLIN RIOT

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Police had to fight through barricades of tables and chairs erected in the City Hall lobby when called in to eject an alderman creating an uproar at the city parliament session. Five policemen were slightly injured before the Communists were all out and the tumult subsided.

MUSCLE SHOALS SHOWDOWN DUE SOON

Senate and House to Attempt Break of Deadlock, Veto By President Held Sure

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Senate and House conferees in charge of Muscle Shoals legislation will meet next week in an effort to break their deadlock, it was made known today.

Both Senator McNary, (Rep.), of Oregon, and Representative Reece (Rep.), of Tennessee, declared themselves eager for a showdown.

PREDICT HOOVER VETO

Though visitors to the White House have flatly predicted President Hoover will veto any bill calling for government operations of the vast power-fertilizer works on the Tennessee River in Alabama, the drive for such a measure admittedly was gaining strength.

The only indication of the course Mr. Hoover may take in the event such a bill is passed, was given in his letter to Representative Reece during his recent campaign for re-election, warmly commending him for standing for lease of the plant.

Since the election, however, several outstanding House leaders have declared their readiness for a vote on government operation. Some have made known they would not be opposed to passage of the Norris bill for government operation, if no satisfactory bid is made by private interests.

RUMOR COMPROMISE BILL

The Senate has passed the Norris bill, whereas the House has passed a bill authorizing the President to lease Muscle Shoals through a board responsible only to him.

As the showdown in conference approached, there were hints of a compromise. The suggestion has been advanced that an alternative proposition be passed, under which the government first would attempt to lease and, failing to receive a satisfactory bid, proceed to government operation.

Pittsburghers Hit Gas Near Ruff Creek

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 28.—A well drilled this week on the William Wood farm, near Ruff Creek, Greene County, is reported to have an initial production of 250,000 cubic feet of gas daily. The strike was made in the Bayard sand. The well is owned by the Philadelphia Gas Company, of Pittsburgh.

HOOVER STAND IN COURT WAR UNEASY

President Between Rival Factions Urging Solution Of League Court Issue

By EDWARD L. RODDAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—President Hoover finds himself today in a ticklish position between two hostile factions of the Republican party, warring over when the League Court issue should be submitted to the Senate.

Reports that the President intends to send the protocol for American adherence to the Court to the Senate at the short session of Congress, reconvening Monday, not only added confusion to the already muddled legislative situation but threatened to widen the Republican split.

The President has been warned by Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican floor leader, and a bitter foe of the League Court, and by Senator Jones, of Washington, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and an advocate of American adherence of the League of Nations auxiliary, to keep the issue out of the Senate at the short session.

PERSHING'S DEMANDS

On the other hand, a committee of 100 Internationalists, headed by Gen. John J. Pershing, and including scores of prominent Republicans, released a blast in an effort to force the President to submit the Court to the Senate now.

Jones, upon his return to Washington yesterday, advocated a special session of the Senate next spring to dispose of the League Court issue. He believes Congress will have its hands full at the short session, ending March 4, getting through the supply bills and in dealing with the present unemployment problem.

Once the raging League Court debate starts in the Senate enactment of the program of necessary legislation will be imperiled, if not doomed, Jones believes. There are many other administration stalwarts who hold the same view.

HOOVER'S POSITION

With this split on the court issue holding high attention, President Hoover's position was like that of the man who had the bear by the tail and was afraid to let go.

Unless he submits the revised protocol to the Senate session which convenes Monday, the Chief Executive will find himself soundly condemned by the organizations which are always pushing for new alliances with Europe.

On the other hand, if he does send the protocol to the Senate, the Court issue may force an extra session of the new Congress which he is anxious to avoid.

The key to the situation rests with Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and an avowed opponent of the Court, who has shown no anxiety to rescue the White House from its predicament.

Apparently President Hoover would like to send up the revised protocol along with his message to Congress next week. He would adopt this course if he could be assured the protocol would merely be referred to the Foreign Relations Committee without being injected into the already jammed legislative program of the Senate.

Senator Borah, however, has already served warning that he has no intention of "holding the bag." Borah takes the attitude that if the Court protocol is referred to his committee he will convene the committee and have it reported to the Senate.

FEDERAL, STATE POWER UNITY URGED

Commission's Report Sees U. S. Control Lessen in Water Rights Battle

By M. L. RAMSAY.
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A definite administration policy of cutting federal control over water powers to the bone, in the name of states' rights, was foreshadowed in the annual report of the retiring Federal Power Commission made public today by Secretary Wilbur as acting chairman.

CITE "DUPLICATION"

Citing complaints of alleged "duplication" from certain state authorities, the report said:

"Clearly the government has the principal obligation in safeguarding the interests of navigation and the federal properties as may be affected by water-power projects, but in other respects the control of these developments is largely a matter of state interest."

Developments may be hampered, it was declared, unless a basis is found for state and federal agencies to "supplement" each other.

Previous commissions have taken the stand that only the federal government could keep hundreds of millions of "water" out of the investment in power plants, thus protecting consumers and safeguarding the right of states, as well as the federal government, to take over the plants later if necessary.

Citing a lack of state machinery, J. F. Lawson, acting chief counsel of the power commission, testified before the Cousens committee last winter:

"State activity in the control of water resources, except in a very few states, has been practically nil."

HYDRO SITES LEASES

The new report termed the leasing of hydro sites to the power companies "the primary business of the commission."

Regarding the vast accumulation of "water" in investment accounts, it was stated the status of accounting work has been "much improved."

Hydro plants completed under federal licenses have a total capacity of 2,608,868 horsepower, the report said.

W. Va. Trade Survey Shows Job Increase

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 28.—That business is better in Clarksburg and Harrison County and that fewer persons are out of employment here than in most places in Central West Virginia, is disclosed in a report just completed by Daniel O. Kimmell, state factory inspector with headquarters in Clarksburg.

Kimmell was assigned the task of making a survey of the unemployment in Central West Virginia by Howard S. Jarrett, of Charleston, state commissioner of labor.

Tree Falls, 3 Men At Grid Game Hurt

The men all were residents of Gallipolis, O., and had crossed the river to see the Gallipolis-Point Pleasant High School game.

Mercer Boy Scouts Plan Bugle Corps

SHARPSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 28.—A bugle and drum corps is to be organized among the Mercer County Boy Scouts. John Evans, D. J. Lewis and George Von Strohe have been named on a committee to direct the work. The county council will act on obtaining a Scout executive at the December meeting.

Franklin Pastor Takes Clarion Call

2 BEGIN TERMS FOR ROBBERY

James Wolf and Bronislaw Opalk, youths, 19, of Herron Hill, today were serving terms of nine and one-half to 19 years in Western Penitentiary after being found guilty Wednesday in Criminal Court before Visiting Judge Miles I. Potter, of Union and Snyder counties, of robbery.

It was charged that September 29 they robbed the gas station of Glen Hoskins, Bigelow boulevard and Herron avenue, and beat up Thomas Passenbarth, 21, an attendant, taking his watch and money. The filling station receipts had been hidden in a gasoline can and were not found by the robbers. Opalk, in his defense, declared he had fought with Passenbarth over a girl, and Wolf denied the accusations.

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

A fairly prominent Pittsburgh woman, who was wealthy enough to be chronically ill, was cured recently for all time. In the midst of an imaginary attack of something or other, she decided she was ailing enough to go to the hospital.

She was in the hospital only a few hours when flowers from her friends started to pour in. The first basket was from the family undertaker (funeral director).

She promptly jumped out of bed and went home.

In line with Senator Reed's plan to ban all immigration, we're in favor of halting the wheels of progress and going back to the good old days when a toothache was a toothache. This potent idea was suggested by the playground which serves as offices for a dentist and a children's specialist.

The waiting room is a miniature Coney Island. There is a kiddie car, a mechanical canary which sings, probably, "I Wonder How the Old Folks Are at Home," a sand box and picture books in which the youngest generation may scrawl this and that.

All this is for psychology's sake. A child, waiting to take the chair, is worked into such a good humor that before he realizes what has happened, his teeth have been fixed without a single wail. In fact, a few days ago a young adventurer whisked the kiddie car into a corridor outside the doctor's office and brushed the knees of a strolling physician, who escaped with slight injuries.

We do not wish to stand in the way of progress, but we believe that a child is entitled to his aches and pains. If we are going to make our dental experience painless we're removing a fecund topic of conversation. It's getting so that soon it will be a pleasure to have one's appendix cancelled.

A new definition for a bad check reaches us through Ray Alvis, manager of Tony Herrera, the boxer. When Alvis was in town recently for the Herrera-Glick bout, he telephoned an out-of-town friend and was heard to say, "Hey, I still have that skiff of yours." Also, a new definition of N. S. F.—Not so fast.

The late Dennie Harris, once an actor, was a favorite of the gallery gods, not so much as an actor but as a ticket seller. Years ago he occupied the Diamond street boxoffice of the old Grand Theater and each week he was kind enough, without solicitation, to remember the regular, sometimes insolvent customers, with best seats in the front rows of "the shelf."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

AVALON, Cal., Nov. 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I've chewed many a wad of gum in my time and I tell you it makes any gum chewer proud to see how wonderful our money has been spent. This Catalina Island that this fellow Wrigley has stuck together in the Pacific is an American garden spot. Every gum chewer should visit it. You swim, golf, fish and chew. It's a tribute to America's only original custom and a monument to a pleased mastication. Yours, WILL ROGERS.

CHECK PASSING SUSPECT HELD

Charged by detectives with being a bad check passer, a man who gave his name as J. M. Hiskey, 43, of New York, was held for further investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court yesterday.

Hiskey, a man of many aliases, admitted, according to Detectives Walter Monaghan and Thomas Morgan, he had obtained $65,000 by fraud and said he could make every cent of it good. Once his wealth was said to have amounted to half a million dollars.

Hiskey was arrested Wednesday in the William Penn Hotel after he was alleged to have attempted to obtain $200 on a bad check. Registered at every hotel in town and smartly dressed, Hiskey, detectives said, is wanted by police from Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Tuberculosis League Asks Generous Response to Plea in War on Disease

Long continued industrial slackness has produced a great amount of poverty which has predisposed many children as well as adults to the ravages of tuberculosis, Grant Curry, president of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, and chairman of the Christmas Seal Committee, said at the official opening of the 1930 seal sale today. He continued:

"In view of this emergency we are asking the people of Allegheny County to go the limit in the amount of their donation toward a common defense against our common foe—tuberculosis. The community's usual generous response is needed now more than ever. We cannot allow tuberculosis to stalk among us unchecked."

SEALS MAILED

Postmen today were delivering more than 20,000,000 seals to 103,237 residents of Pittsburgh. Seals are mailed in lots of 200 each. They cost a cent each. The sale in the county districts outside the city is being conducted by league chairmen each using the method of distribution best suited to their districts. An additional 4,000,000 seals is being offered for sale in these sections.

Mr. Curry said:

"The Tuberculosis League is not a charity. It is a community responsibility.

"League physicians and nurses are at the disposal of the needy sick without expense to these sick ones. Eighty-seven per cent of the patients in the Tuberculosis League Hospital are there without cost to themselves. More than 9,000 persons received free medical examination, advice and treatment at the league's dispensaries during the year. Its open-air school provides free medical attention and education for sick children."

MAYOR URGES SUPPORT

Mayor Charles Kline today issued a proclamation urging the purchase of seals. He said:

"Disturbed economic conditions like the present tend to break down resistance to tuberculosis. Purchase of Christmas seals will aid in combatting the situation thus created."

The league cautions the public that only seals which bear the picture of Santa Claus carrying a Christmas tree, and showing the scarlet double-barred cross, international symbol of the tuberculosis movement; the words, "Merry Christmas—Health to All," and the date, 1930, are official and sold only for the purpose of raising funds for the campaign against tuberculosis.

DEALERS FIGHT PROPOSED BAN AT HEARING

Issue Revealed as Question Of Use in City, But Not Sale, or Total Exclusion

Persons interested in the proposed ordinance to ban fireworks in Pittsburgh are awaiting today the appointment of three committees from as many groups to investigate future aspects of the legislation.

Decided upon after a heated session in which verbal pyrotechnics vi ' among councilmen with the heated verbiage of argument for and against the bill, the committees will be appointed from the personnel of City Council, before which body a hearing was held, by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council and fireworks dealers of Pittsburgh.

CLARK RE-OFFERS PLAN

Held in the council chamber, the hearing brought out a packed house as Councilman Robert Garland, Sidney Teller, of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement; Fire Chief Richard L. Smith and Frank L. Duggan, president of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, argued for the passage of an ordinance banning fireworks from the city.

Opponents included James M. Clark, director of public safety, and Attorney Charles Sachs, representing J. H. Halpern-Shrager Company, of 124 Third avenue, and other pyrotechnics distributors.

URGES COMMON SENSE

Sachs, in his plea for "less fanaticism and more common sense" in weighing the matter, divided fireworks into two classes —the dangerous and the harmless. He told the committee reputable dealers here sold only the second variety. To this end he offered a "compromise ordinance," embodying permission for sale of certain fireworks. No one under 12 years of age would be permitted their purchase.

When Clark spoke he was interrupted many times by Councilman Garland and had a difficult time getting his appeal across. The bill outlined by Clark and passage of which he urged provides that no purchaser of pyrotechnics can do so unless he first secures a free permit from the Fire Bureau. Sellers would first pay a license fee of $100 to the city.

Councilman Garland then said to Clark:

"Why are you in favor of fireworks? Do you want this $5,000 or so revenue for the city? Isn't a human life saved from death by fireworks more valuable? Such money is 'blood money' if even one death is caused."

Clark's reply was:

DRY AGENTS GET IDENTITY SIGNS

Prohibition enforcement officers in the Plaza Building headquarters today received the official signs that are to be carried by agents and shown when stopping persons on the highways, to prevent agents being mistaken for holdup men.

"Stop—U. S. Official, Bureau of Prohibition."

The signs are to be carried in the agents' cars and they are to use their discretion about showing them when stopping motorists or in making search for contraband liquor.

Suspect Asked Him to Aid Store Holdup, Taxi Driver Testifies; Clerk Witness

Identified as the bandit who held up and robbed the Dixie Shoe Store, 504 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, Wednesday night, Paul Collins, 22, of 401 Fourth street, McKeesport, was held for McKeesport authorities at a hearing this morning in South Side Police Court by Magistrate John J. Sweeney.

Collins was arrested Monday night in Hays following the holdup after police had obtained his description from a cab driver. The driver, Kenneth Mattews, testified this morning that he had driven Collins from McKeesport to Hays, and that during the ride Collins had asked him to assist in the holdup of a Hays drug store.

Jess Salkowitz, a clerk in the shoe store, identified Collins. According to Salkowitz, the highwaymen entered the store and forced the manager and himself to lie down while he removed $20 from the till and $80 from the safe. He returned $20, telling the employes they might need it.

THREE MILLION SATISFIED OWNERS

THANKSGIVING JOYS SHARED WITH NEEDY

Thousands Fed, Clothes And Fuel Distributed; Hospitals, Jails Cheered

Kindly Pa Pitt turned his horn of plenty upside down yesterday and showered his less fortunate sons with the necessities of life—clothing, food and coal, which are today helping them in their fight against the cold, their worst enemy.

Charity organizations fed thousands, and hospitals and penal institutions served special dinners to patients and inmates. The Helping Hand, Salvation Army, Improvement of the Poor, the Fraternal Order of Police relief committee, Volunteers of America and the Goodwill Industries were among the organizations which gave food and clothing to families and unemployed persons.

SPECIAL 'PEN' DINNERS

Inmates of the Western Penitentiary and the Allegheny County Jail were served special dinners, the one with baked ham, the other with a roast beef dinner. Programs of entertainment were presented.

In Mt. Lebanon and Dormont, and in practically all of the larger boroughs, various civic organizations presented deserving families with fuel, clothing and groceries. Glassport police gave 30 baskets of food to needy families and provided milk for babies.

At the United States Veterans' Hospital, Aspinwall, and at the Marine Hospital, Penn avenue, special Thanksgiving dishes were served and entertainment given.

WOMAN ADDRESSES GROUP

Two hundred men, most of them former prisoners, were sheltered and given Thanksgiving dinner at the Parting of the Ways Home, 216 East Stockton avenue, North Side. Clothing was also distributed. Miss Anna McFedries, prison worker, spoke.

In Bellevue members of the Senior Young People's League of the Methodist Episcopal Church gave baskets to 48 families in the North Boroughs. Park Crawford, president, and Miss Lydia Caldwell, supervised the distribution.

At the Helping Hand, Water street, 1,512 men slept last night, 2,432 evening dinners were served and 1,732 breakfasts provided this morning, the organization reported. The Society for Improvement of the Poor fed 2,000 yesterday and gave sleeping quarters to 903. The Salvation Army cared for hundreds, but had no reports from branch stations.

JUNGLE HAPPY

Cold winds and threatened eviction from their boxwood shanties failed to chill the Thanksgiving Day spirits of dwellers of the "Jungles," a colony of unemployed along the Banksville road.

Sharing Thanksgiving donations from neighbors the "Jungle" was happy because nearby residents and police had protested plans to evict them from their nondescript shacks.

More than 1,000 men were fed at the bread line conducted by the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Seventeenth street. Baskets containing food for Thanksgiving dinner were distributed to 175 families and 152 homeless and unemployed men were given clothing.

Religious services were held in many homes and churches yesterday. In many boroughs and in many sections of the city, churches united for the services.

TARDIEU MAKES PLEA TO U. S.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—An eloquent appeal for the United States and France to take the lead in saving the world economically and financially was made by Premier Andre Tardieu at the Thanksgiving dinner of the American Club, of Paris.

He frankly criticised the American people for failing to judge the people of France at their true value, saying:

"In our difficult moments, in our difficult periods, you have a tendency to call us fantasists. When we are at the top you say we are workers."

Remarking that the United States is a young nation composed of sons of proud emigrants who preferred to voyage to the American continent rather than to stay in Europe, he voiced the opinion it would be the middle and far west which would determine the evolution of America.

He maintained the present economic crisis had come from the United States, and expressed the conviction the real hope of solution is for the United States and France to take the lead and help the world as a whole.

TRIP TO PARIS CONTEST ENDS

Tomorrow night at midnight the Paris-Bermuda contest comes to a close and before the middle of next week the Pittsburgh girl who wins the Gloria Swanson free trip to Paris will know of her good fortune, and the five girls who win free trips to Bermuda, offered by the Sun-Telegraph, will also be getting ready to get away from the wintry blasts.

Naturally the race is for the wonderful Paris tour, and as the contest stands today this is being hotly contended for between Marion Evans, Sarah Jane Shapiro, Agnes Rita Carroll and Anna Nydes, of Pittsburgh, and Jean De Blasio, of Arnold, Pa.

While these five girls are in the lead today there are plenty of candidates in the contest who still have time enough to come through and upset their hopes.

The contestants are divided into five groups, according to their occupation or vocation. The girl who has the highest vote standing of all the groups will win the trip to Paris, and one girl in each group, the highest, gets a trip to Bermuda. They will all leave Pittsburgh on or about December 10, one girl sailing for Paris on the 12th and the five girls sailing for sunny Bermuda the same day.

Helping Hand Reports Traffic To 'Lodgers' and Agents Seize Moonshine in Raids

Accused of being sources of liquor supply for lodgers cared for at the Helping Hand, 439 Water street, a man and a woman were at liberty on bail today after raids on their establishments by prohibition agents.

Those arrested, according to prohibition agents, were Flora Barack, of 1003 Bedford avenue, and George Smith, 40, a Negro, of 1406 Clark street. Seizures of moonshine were reported at each address.

Attorney Harry I. Miller, representing the Helping Hand, said he had received several complaints that both suspects were employing "runners" and salesmen, who accosted lodgers of the home on streets nearby and offered to sell them liquor for 20 cents a pint. Offers of narcotics were made to others, Miller said he was told.

An under-cover man, in the guise of a derelict, was put to work in the place and the alleged sources of supply discovered, Miller asserted. Every resource of the organization will be used to stamp out any further evils, according to Miller.

Announce Betrothal

A NEW FABRIC MAKES ITS DEBUT ON EVENING MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—A most important material fact is that silk jersey is now a fabric of which dreams of evening frocks are made. For there has just been introduced a new silk jersey of a very fine but dull surfaced weave somewhat resembling crepe roma in its general effect. It is most attractive and lends itself splendidly to evening wear as it hangs beautifullly and is ideal for the tailored effects that so many women find pleasing for evening frocks. No doubt this innovation will be promptly accepted as some of the smartest houses have quickly taken it to the hearts and workrooms with the result that there are several models to be seen, made of the new evening jersey.

* * *

WE HAVE TOLD you so much about the new jersey fabric because it is the material used for the new Lucile model sketched here. A glance at the frock will convey some idea how well it makes up. The color is a symphony of blue and silver, this ethereal combination making as aesthetic an appeal as ever. The blue is of the lovely Nattier shade and over the closely-fitting hip-yoke is a double belt of silver leather fastening with a strass buckle. On one shoulder is caught a pleated panel of the fabric beneath the confines of a flat silver flower. The fan-pleated skirt is even all around and just clears the floor.

* * *

MAGGY ROUFF is the maker of the coat a sketch of which is here shown. It is of dark brown bouclette. The wide scarf ends seen at back are in one piece with the pointed yoke visible in the sketch. They are crossed in front and thrown over each shoulder. Starting at the back, on either side is a narrow belt of brown astrakan which is knotted at the front. The same fur borders the wide scarf.

ORIENTAL RUG SALE
IMPORTER AND EXPERT
First Oriental Rug Man in America

With many of Pittsburgh's wealthiest families as my customers, I have visited this city from 1885 to 1910. Now, I am here once more, at 445 Wood Street, with some of the very best oriental art rugs in existence. These must be sold at once, as it is absolutely necessary that I raise $125,000 cash at once, or lose my Ambassador Apartment in Philadelphia.

Our Extremity Is Your Opportunity

Although I have always been a strictly one-price merchant, it has been necessary to mark these at prices which represent a great sacrifice. All my rugs are antique and semi-antique.

Make Your Selection NOW Before It Is Too Late!

This store will be kept open by appointment for those who wish to view our magnificent stock of oriental rugs in the evening.

BOGGS & BUHL

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

Eggs abound in vitamins, the vital nutritive substances the human system must have to be at the peak of physical perfection.

Eggs are of such importance in the diet that they have been called "sealed sunshine." For those persons spending much of their time indoors, especially in the comparatively sunless autumn and winter months, eggs should be an important part of the diet.

An eminent French chef has said all cooking rests upon the egg. And certainly there are many tempting ways to serve eggs.

* * *

SHIRRED EGGS AND SAUSAGES—Cut six small sausages into half-inch pieces and fry in one teaspoonful of melted butter six minutes. Add one cup of tomato sauce to which has been added one teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley. Put the mixture in six buttered shirred-egg dishes, crack two eggs in each dish, and bake until eggs are set.

* * *

BAKED EGGS IN TOMATO CUPS—Scoop out the centers of large, firm, ripe tomatoes. Sprinkle the tomato cups lightly on the inside with salt and dot with butter. Break an egg into each tomato, sprinkle with salt, pepper and fine, dry bread-crumbs, and dot with butter. Bake in a 350-degree oven until the tomato skins are slightly wrinkled.

* * *

PEACH NECTAR—Peel, stone and crush very ripe but sound peaches. To 6 quarts of the pulp add 1 quart vinegar. Let stand in an enamel or porcelain vessel for 36 hours with a cloth tied over the top of the container. Strain first through a cheesecloth bag and then through a canton flannel one.

Measure juice and add an equal quantity of sugar. Stir until dissolved. Place in a preserving kettle and boil five minutes, counting time when juice begins to boil. Remove at once, pour into sterilized jars or bottles, and seal tightly. Store in a cool place.

* * *

WASHINGTON SALAD—Pile cheese straws in log cabin fashion on a large plate, leaving a center space sufficient to hold the salad. Mix celery, artichokes, orange and grapefruit pulp with French dressing. Garnish with mayonnaise. Serve two cheese straws with each portion of salad.

* * *

BAKED FISH—Grease a plate and lay the fish on it with the skin side upwards. Put in the oven five minutes and the skin can be easily removed. Melt butter in a flat pan, lay fish on it and place in hot oven over 400 degrees Fahrenheit eight to 10 minutes. Baste twice while baking. Remove, season and squeeze lemon juice over. Serve hot.

* * *

ORANGE PUMPKIN CANDY—Put pumpkin, syrup, sugar, butter, grated rinds and strained juices of orange and lemon into a saucepan. Stir over a gentle heat until mixture forms a hard ball when tested in cold water, or until it reaches 254 degrees Fahrenheit. Add cinnamon and nut meats and pour into greased tins. When cool mark into squares.

* * *

ASPARAGUS ITALIENNE—(Serves 6)—Two pounds asparagus, boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Juice 1 orange. Fried croutons of bread or buttered toast slices.

Trim asparagus stalks to uniform length, wash and tie in six bundles. Cook in boiling water until tender, keeping tips above water for the first 10 minutes. Just before cooking is completed salt the water. Make a white sauce of butter, flour, milk and seasonings and add strained juice of 1 orange. Serve on fried croutons of bread or a slice of buttered toast with sauce poured over the tips.

* * *

LIME MALLOW SPONGE—Dissolve a package of the new lime gelatine in boiling water; using a pint of water. Add 10 marshmallows, finely cut, and stir until dissolved. Chill until cold and syrupy. Place in a bowl of cracked ice or ice water and whip with a rotary egg beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Pile into sherbert glasses and chill until firm. Or turn into the freezing tray of the automatic refrigerator and chill 1½ to 2 hours.

* * *

APPLE JELLY—Use tart apples that are barely ripe or slightly underripe. Wash and cut the fruit in slices about ⅛ inch thick, leaving the peel on. Add water to cover, about 2 cups to each pound of fruit. Cook 15 or 20 minutes, or until soft. Strain through a cheesecloth bag and then through a flannel one. Add ¾ cup sugar to each cup of sour apple juice, or 2-3 cup sugar to each cup juice of moderate acidity. Boil to the jellying point and fill glasses.

* * *

SWEET APPLE CIDER—Use fully ripened apples free from decay. Wash them thoroughly and remove all leaves. Crush the apples and extract the juice, or cider, in a clean press. Place the juice in a large open preserving kettle and boil it down until it is reduced one-half, skimming it often. Pour at once into hot sterilized jars and seal, or pour the fresh juice at once in jars, put the covers in place loosely, without the rubber, stand the jars in a washboiler on a false bottom, surround them in a bath of warm water to within a few inches of the top of the jars. Cover boiler, place on fire and let water boil and steam 1 hour. Remove jars one at a time, put a new rubber in place and seal at once. This will keep indefinitely.

* * *

CAULIFLOWER WITH SAVORY SAUCE—Cook 1 head of cauliflower and break into flowerets. Prepare a sauce by melting 3 tablespoons butter. Add salt and pepper to taste. Then add 1 tablespoon sugar and 3 tablespoons lemon juice and the grated rind of ½ lemon. Blend well over the fire. Just before pouring over the cauliflower add 2 tablespoons of minced parsley. Put cauliflower in serving dish, cover with the sauce and serve with fancy lemon garnish sprinkled with paprika.

* * *

APPLE SOUFFLE—Add 4½ tablespoons quick cooking tapioca to 1 cup scalded milk seasoned with ⅛ teaspoon salt. Cook in double boiler for 15 minutes, add 1-3 cup sugar. Cool. Add 3 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon colored, add ½ tablespoon lemon juice and 1 cup grated apple or drained, cooked apple pulp. Fold in 3 egg whites stiffly beaten. Bake in greased ramekins placed in hot water, in a moderate oven for 45 minutes. Serve hot with sweetened whipped cream. Serves eight.

* * *

TUTTI FRUTTI RICE PUDDING—Prepare 1 cup of rice by cooking in 2 cups of water until the rice is tender. Add ½ cup butter and ⅔ cup sugar, 5 well beaten eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup raisins, chopped and lightly floured, ½ cup currants, ¼ cup candied citron, cut in fine strips, ½ cup sherry and 1 tablespoon nutmeg. Add 1 quart of thin cream and mix all well. Bake in a well buttered casserole in a moderate oven for 1 hour.

* * *

SURPRISE SALAD—Two tablespoonfuls of gelatin, ½ cupful of cold water, 2 cupfuls of boiling water and pineapple juice, ½ cupful of vinegar, 1½ teaspoonfuls of salt, ½ cupful of sugar, 1 cupful of shredded cabbage, 1 green pepper or pimento, 1 cupful of canned pineapple, 1 small onion. Soak the gelatin in cold water, add the boiling water and fruit juice. After the gelatin is dissolved, add the vinegar, sugar and salt; stand it in cold water and when it begins to thicken pour into a cold wet mold in alternate layers with the remaining ingredients. Serve with lettuce and mayonnaise dressing.

* * *

GINGERBREAD WITH CREAM CHEESE FILLING—Prepare gingerbread batter and bake in pans, making the gingerbread 1 inch thick when baked. When cool, trim the crisp edges from the cake and cut in halves. Spread the ½ with cream cheese softened with whipped cream. Then cover with a quince or currant jelly. Put the other layer on the top and spread with softened cream cheese. Cut in slices 1½ by 3 inches, sprinkle with chopped nuts and serve.

* * *

PINEAPPLE REFRIGERATOR CAKE—Soak 1 tablespoon gelatine in ¼ cup cold water about 5 minutes and then dissolve over hot water. Add 1 cup crushed pineapple to dissolved gelatine and stir well. Add ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon lemon juice and continue stirring. Allow the mixture to cool and when it begins to thicken fold in 1 cup of cream, whipped. Line a mold with sponge cake strips or lady fingers. Fill the mold with the dessert mixture. Place rings of pineapple over the top. Place in refrigerator to chill. Unmold and serve garnished with whipped cream and additional pineapple and cherries.

* * *

LEMON SOUFFLE—Beat 5 egg yolks until light. Add 3 tablespoons sugar and beat again. Add 3 tablespoons lemon juice and the grated rind of 1 lemon. Beat the whites of 5 eggs with ¼ teaspoon salt until stiff and dry. Fold the egg yolk mixture into the beaten whites and bake until light and delicate brown. Serve at once.

* * *

TOMATO GELATIN SALADS—Two cups tomatoes, 1 cup water, 4 whole cloves, 1 tablespoon bark cinnamon, 2 slices onions, 4 celery leaves, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 tablespoons granulated gelatin, 4 tablespoons cold water.

Boil all ingredients (except the gelatin and cold water) for 20 minutes in covered pan. Strain thoroughly. Soak the gelatin and cold water 5 minutes. Heat the tomato mixture until boiling and pour over the gelatin. Stir until well dissolved. Pour into individual molds and set in a cold place to stiffen. Unmold into cups of crisp lettuce and surround with mayonnaise.

* * *

CRANBERRY SHERBET—Four cups berries, 2 cups water, 2 cups sugar, ½ cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Look over the berries and remove stems. Add the water. Cook slowly in covered pan 15 minutes. Mash well and add the sugar. Cook 1 minute. Cool. Add rest of ingredients and freeze until stiff. Serve in glass cups.

* * *

COCOANUT FRUIT SALAD—Mix ¾ cup diced tart apples, ¾ cup diced celery and ½ cup shredded cocoanut. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Mix with a dressing made of butter, creamed and mixed with orange juice and confectioner's sugar. Chill. Serve in cups of lettuce topped with cooked salad dressing.

* * *

FRUIT COOKIES—(Excellent for holidays)—One cup butter, 2 cups dark brown sugar, 3 eggs, ½ cup sour cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon lemon extract, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 cup chopped raisins, 1 cup chopped figs, 1 cup chopped nuts, 4 1-3 cups flour, 2 teaspoons soda. Cream the butter and sugar. Add rest of ingredients and shape into 2 rolls, 2 inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper and chill 24 hours. Cut off thin slices and bake.

* * *

SUPREME MEAT LOAF—(Serving 8)—One pound chopped beef round, ½ pound chopped pork butts, ½ pound chopped veal round, 1 cup rolled bread crumbs, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 2 tablespoons chopped celery, 11-3 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 3 tablespoons bacon fat, melted. Mix all ingredients and shape into a loaf. Fit into baking pan and add ½ cup of hot water. Cover and bake 1 hour. Baste frequently.

* * *

CRANBERRY FILLING FOR TARTS—Three cups berries, 1 cup water, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter. Mix the berries and water. Cook 5 minutes in covered pan. Blend the flour, sugar and butter. Add to berry mixture. Cook 2 minutes. Cool. Pour into unbaked tart shells, cover with criss-cross strips of unbaked pastry and bake 15 minutes in moderate oven.

* * *

CINNAMON CAKES—One-half cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk, 1¾ cups flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Cream butter, add sugar and well-beaten eggs. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk to the egg mixture. Bake in individual buttered cake tins.

* * *

CORN PUDDING—Combine 1 pint canned corn, 2 eggs slightly beaten, 1½ teaspoons salt and a few drops of onion juice. Mix and add ¾ cup of evaporated milk, ¾ cup of boiling water, 2 tablespoons melted butter and a dash of paprika. Pour into buttered molds, set in a pan half filled with hot water and bake until firm in a moderate oven. Add for variations ½ chopped green pepper, ½ chopped pimento or ½ cup grated cheese.

* * *

PLAIN PASTRY—Two cups pastry flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 cups cold water, ½ cup cold fat.

Sift flour, then measure. Resift with salt. Add fat. With a fork break fat into small pieces; then work quickly into flour with fingers until appearance is like coarse, dry meal.

Add some milk, dilute with water, gradually, stirring into the flour with a tossing motion. Use a fork for this mixing. Add only sufficient liquid to moisten. Divide into portions. Form each into a disc and roll out. Plain pastry must be baked in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) to be crisp and tender.

* * *

HALLOWEEN SALAD—Cut the tops off 12 yellow apples at the stem and scoop out the centers. Chop the apple pulp and add 1 pint chopped celery, and 1½ cups broken nut meats. Chill cream and whip so there will be ⅔ of a cup when whipped, fold into 2 cups cooked salad dressing, with ⅔ cup of evaporated milk. Mix dressing with salad mixture and fill apple cups with the mixture. Cut a face on the outside of the apple. Decorate with goblin heads. This makes 12 salads.

* * *

BOSTON BROWN BREAD—Sift together 1 cup of yellow cornmeal, a cup of rye meal and a cup of whole wheat flour.

Sift again with a teaspoon of salt and 2 teaspoons of soda. Add a pint of sour or buttermilk and ⅔ cup of molasses, and mix well. Turn into buttered moulds, filling ⅔ full.

Cover tightly and steam 3 hours. If 12-ounce baking powder tins are used, 2 hours' steaming will do, although longer cooking improves the bread rather than harming it.

* * *

OYSTER STEW—Four cups milk, 1 slice onion, 2 stalks celery, 2 sprigs parsley, bit of bay leaf, 4 tablespoons cracker crumbs, 1 pint oysters, 3 tablespoons butter, dash paprika, salt.

Scald milk, dilute with water; put in onion, celery, parsley and bay leaf and add crackers. Heat the cleaned oysters in their own liquid until the edges curl. Add to milk and season with butter, paprika and salt. Serve immediately. Yields 5 servings.

* * *

END OF SLUMP SEEN BY WALES

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(Universal.)—The Prince of Wales told 500 Americans attending the Thanksgiving Day dinner at the Savoy Hotel he hoped to see the world's economic depression alleviated before they again assemble next year. He said:

"The depression which his excellency the American Ambassador referred to must be getting worn out. If you have a similar celebration next year, I hope that, before you eat your Thanksgiving turkey, that word may disappear from our common dictionary."

Earlier in his speech the prince said it had been six years since his last visit to America, at which time he met Ambassador Charles G. Dawes opening the Peace Bridge.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Is Wife More to Blame Than 'Other Woman?'

Have you ever wondered how the Other Woman felt? She is telling you today.

I am giving you her letter, exactly as she wrote it. And I'm leaving the answer up to you.

Is this woman a thief, a wanton, everything that is vile and shameful? Should she be branded—driven into exile?

Or is she more sinned against than sinning? And is the wife, who holds an unwilling husband whom she no longer loves, the real criminal?

It's up to you to decide.

"Dear Sally:

"Mine is just another story about the eternal triangle. I was 18 when I met Keith. He was 30 and married. Now, I am 21, and Keith is 33, and still married. I worked in the same office with him, and things just seemed to happen. We discovered we liked the same books, the same music, the same plays, the same places, and an endless variety of the same things.

Waits for Letters

"It was a casual friendship, and I kept assuring myself that it meant nothing and would lead to nothing. He never asked me to luncheon or dinner, or ever let me know that he was at all interested in me, personally. He'd drive me downtown if I happened to be going when he was, or home if it was raining, and just careless, little thoughtfulnesses that made me like him.

"Then, like a bolt from the blue, there was a chance for a promotion. He wanted it and I wanted him to get it. And he says that I helped him get it. Well, he made the grade, and it necessitated a change of residence from San Francisco to New York. The day he left he asked if he might write to me, and because I did want to hear from him, I said 'yes.'

"And, to my surprise, I found myself counting days, waiting for letters, galloping to answer them when I got them, and discovering how very much I had learned to like him.

Interests Differ

"He came back for a few days on a flying trip. He told me then that he loved me, and wanted to marry me. He had never mentioned his wife to me, and I asked him then about her. He told me what I believe to be the truth. And as he has never lied to me, I don't believe he would—or could.

"He had married her when he was very young, and because he he had loved her and she loved him. Afterward, they had discovered that their interests were miles apart. The things he loved she hated, and vice versa. There followed a trying period of 'adjustment,' in which he honestly tried to like her things and she tried to like his, but it was no go. And, while she became suspicious, jealous, unhappy, he became taciturn, bored, indifferent. And he intended to tell her, honestly, the circumstances of our love. Under the conditions, as they were, he thought that it would be happier for both of them, if they parted and started fresh. And he felt she would see things that way.

"But he was mistaken about her. She asked to meet me, and I went, because I expected her to—well—play fair. Oh! I know now that it was a colossally cruel thing to do, but I honestly believed that she didn't love him, and wanted to adjust things. But I was mistaken.

"Naturally, I am prejudiced against her now. But there wasn't any reason for her to have been so brutal, so vulgar, as she was to me. She threatened me with dire consequences if I didn't leave him alone. The whole thing was like the third act of a melodrama.

"If she had told me that she loved him, and asked me to give him up I would have done so. I was young, unsophisticated and selfish, but I wasn't cruel. But after the terrible things she said I fought to keep what I had and kept it. He left her and wouldn't go back. He went to New York, and she followed him. But he refused to see or speak to her. And she refused to divorce him.

Breaks Promise

"She came back, and went to my Dad. Mother is dead, and he is all I have. I hadn't told him. Maybe that looks as if I were ashamed of it. But I wasn't. Not a bit. Keith's love and mine was, and is, clean, fine and worthwhile. But I did know that it would look wrong to Dad, and make him unhappy. Well, she told Dad her story, and I told him mine. So Dad asked us not to see or write to each other for a year, and she promised that if after that we still loved each other she would give Keith his freedom.

"We kept our word, but she didn't. When the year was up, and I saw him, we loved each other more than ever, even though in the meantime I had thrown myself into everything that came my way, parties, dances, tennis, anything to keep my mind off him.

"And in the face of all that, she flatly refuses, after promising, to divorce him. And this year has been a year of Hell. Furtive love-making. Stolen moments. Meetings in inconspicuous places. And it's spoiling everything, making it seem sordid. We both hate deceit, and under-handedness, and we find ourselves in for plenty of it.

"She says she'll never give him up. And I'm sure she means it. She must love him I suppose, but I don't and can't understand that kind of love. Maybe I'm wrong, but I couldn't stand being humiliated as she is humiliating herself.

"But give him up, I can't and won't. It's going to mean unhappiness and suffering, yes. But I'm willing to pay the price of that, too. Anything is better than this."

Showmanship Instead of Pouts at Home Would Work Wonders—Fay King

By FAY KING.

The finest compliment paid to a star is when fellow-players say that star is "a great trouper."

This means that in spite of everything that star will give the best of performances.

There may be dissension, uncertainty, personal quarrels, illness or any number of things "back-stage," but all this is forgotten before an audience.

The stage is not alone in this excellent showmanship. It exists everywhere in the business world.

A saleslady, a little waitress, a secretary, may have good reasons for being grouchy and cross, but buries personal feelings and is gracious and smiling for the sake of success.

A little more of this good showmanship in the home, instead of giving way to personal pouts and petty quarrels would work wonders.

Dicky, With Edith, Spot in on Veritzen Dinner

Had anyone else at our dinner table recognized Dicky's voice and that of Edith Fairfax outside the tapestries which separated the smaller dining room from the larger at the Sign of the Scimitar?

This was the question which caromed through my brain as with the sensation of having been deluged by an icy shower of water. I looked from beneath my lowered lashes at the other faces around the table.

I paid no attention to young Mr. Cameron's face, for to him, of course the voices meant nothing. That Philip Veritzen absorbed in watching Mary, had not caught the little colloquy, I saw. But though the faces of Harry and Lillian Underwood held nothing to betray their recognition, their eyes were plainly alert to the significance of the moment, while Mary, less skillful in concealing her emotions, was looking at me with plainly startled eyes which, to my sudden choked gratification, held something more than surprise—indeed a very distinct angry partisanship for me.

Something must be done, and that instantly I decided, for in another half-second, no doubt Dicky's eyes and mine would meet in mutual recognition. I had the advantage of this momentary forewarning, but he would have nothing. Beneath the jealous anger which was shaking me, I was conscious of a mean little curiosity as to whether my husband's first reaction would be jealousy of me in the role of guest of honor at my employer's dinner, or chagrin at my seeing him as the escort of Edith Fairfax, whose interest in him, was, we both knew, far more than the comradely liking she paraded as the natural accompaniment of their professional association.

With the warm reassuring consciousness of a resourceful friendliness which never failed me, I telegraphed an appeal to Lillian and she at once went into action.

"My word, Phil!" she exclaimed, "see who's come to your party without knowing it!"

She turned as she spoke, just in time to meet Dicky's startled eyes as he glanced through the curtains on the way to the table, allotted him by the head waiter.

"Greetings and all good wishes!" she intoned. "Come over and tell us how you happen to be here instead of at the farm, where your spouse and I supposed we had you safely parked. Lo, Edith. How fit you're looking! Phil! old dear, you appointed me hostess at this impromptu conference dinner. Mayn't I order the table enlarged?"

"Oh! indeed, no. Dicky began a bit haughtily, but Mr. Veritzen who had risen with the other men at sight of Edith, came forward with outstretched hand and the impressive courtesy which he knows so well how to assume, and which no one can refuse without appearing boorish.

"Oh! but indeed, yes," my employer said. "This makes things perfect. How do you do, Miss Fairfax! This is indeed a privilege."

He beckoned to the waiter hovering near, gave him a low-toned direction, then turned laughingly to Mr. Underwood.

"Harry, if you'll let the man move your chair a bit closer to Mrs. Graham's, you can make room for her husband on the other side of you, and if you, Cameron, don't mind sitting a little nearer Miss Mary then Miss Fairfax will have plenty of room to talk to Mrs. Underwood. I had meant to tell the manager that our table was a bit too large for cosiness, but now he can go unrebuked. How fortunate that you came in just now! We are just finishing the fish course, but we can—"

"Neither fish nor soup for us, eh! Ede?" Dicky said promptly. "And we might dispense with the "vine leaves," for they take some time for preparation, and—I know your reputation. I wouldn't delay a dinner of yours for any money."

"You do not need to," Mr. Veritzen assured him. "I always order at least two extra dishes of each course, for a possible emergency. You shall have your vine leaves immediately, and I will have your chicken and lamb put on the fire immediately. I assume you wish those two specialties of the house. Thus you will be served with the main course only a few minutes after us, and after that we can all dally together over the salad, the dessert and the coffee. I trust you have no later engagement this evening."

"Nary a one," Dicky said promptly, and I wondered if I was mistaken in thinking Edith's eyes held a flash of disappointment. A half-second later I was less sure, for catching my eyes, she put up her hand in a light friendly little gesture as if our meeting in this bizarre fashion were the most natural thing in the world.

But Dicky had not looked at me.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, November 29

The sidereal operations in force on this day point to great advancement and progress, with auspicious and generally flourishing conditions in business as well as in the personal associations and aims. The finances are well fortified by a very friendly and powerful Jupiter, although it would be well to be particularly cautious in signing all writings and documents. The social or affectional affiliations may occupy large place in the happy affairs of the day.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which to push to high goals, as the planet of progress and prosperity reigns in friendly spirit, assuring his benefices in business, domestic affairs and accenting the affectional relations. But sign all papers with precaution and guard against misrepresentation.

A child born on this day should be noble, generous, popular and ambitious and should attain good position in life and attain great personal happiness.

Mended Shirts

Some men will wear out shirts in prominent places before wearing out the entire garment. It is impossible to match all sorts of shirt patterns and one housewife solved the problem by removing pieces for patching from the tail of the shirt. Any shirt can stand a little depreciation in this particular section and there you have enough for patching the more important parts.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Washington—MY Washington!

I am back in my Little Old Home Town. A beautiful, dreamy town with wide, tree-lined streets and lovely parks—called WASHINGTON, D. C.! (Perhaps you've heard of it.)

* * *

O. O. McIntyre put Gallipolis, Ohio, on the map. But, it took "The Man With the Green Hat" to make Washington famous.

* * *

Still, if THAT'S all you know about Washington, you don't know your Capital City. There is a vast population in Washington, to whom "bootlegger" is only a naughty word, and who know only in a vague, academic sort of way that there has been a crash in Wall street, or something.

* * *

There are the army of government employes and employees, who go down to the offices every morning at 8:30, come home promptly at 4:30, and gather around the radio at 7, every evening, to listen to Amos 'n' Andy.

* * *

Washington is the most MARRIED city of its size in America. In fact, it is so married that eligible bachelors are scarcer, here, than Stradivarious violins and more spoiled than the King of Rumania, or yesterday's fish-plate.

* * *

The most romantic city in the world—and nothing much to ROMANT about! For, when a Washington boy leaves college, he leaves Washington, and goes to a bigger and busier city to carve out his career. He never comes back, until he comes to Congress—and then, he brings his wife and the kiddies along.

* * *

But, there are compensations. Washington may have the poorest crop of lovers, but it has the best crop of husbands in America. In Washington, a married man is a "married man;" and you can see hundreds of them out in the parks, pushing perambulators, or taking Junior and Tige for a walk, every pleasant Sunday afternoon.

* * *

A government clerk, if you can blindfold him and back him into marriage, makes the best and most domesticated husband in the world. Probably, because he has neither the money, the time, nor the opportunity to make whoopee.

* * *

Washington is NOT a whoopee town, no matter what you may have heard to the contrary. It is a RESTFUL town. And, if you have ever lived here, you know why it takes so long to get a bill through Congress. Everybody comes to Washington to RELAX. It is the most RELAXED and RELAXING city in this fair Land.

* * *

After a few weeks in New York, it is more soothing than a hot water bottle and a lullaby, the only exciting things in Washington are pay day, Christmas, and the danger of being run over by a bootlegger.

* * *

I LOVE Washington—its "dolce for niente" atmosphere, its broad, gracious streets and its gentle, gracious manners. Its quiet shops, its restful vistas, its good-natured, unhurrying crowds. These are sweeter than a southern drawl! I come here, nearly every winter, to get my nerves toned down, my cynicism removed and my manners polished.

* * *

Six weeks in Washington, and I'm such a "perfect LADY" that my New York friends are suspicious of me. Six months in Washington, and I want to stop writing satire—and begin writing poetry! That's Washington—MY Washington!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The Epidemic "Scare" and School Children

From time to time during the school year every mother is frightened by talk of epidemics. Dreadful stories are told about the prevalence of measles, mumps, whooping cough, grippe, perhaps scarlet fever, diptheria, or infantile paralysis. Her natural impulse under such circumstances is to take her child out of school. She does this in the desperate attempt to get him away from the danger of contagion.

DR. COPELAND

As a matter of fact, in most cases, certainly the school is the very safest place for the child. There his health is carefully watched. If any disease is prevalent the teachers are on the alert to discover the first symptoms. It is safe to say that every possible precaution will be taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

At one time it was a very common practice to close schools in time of epidemics. This may still be necessary or advisable in some cases possibly, but that is a matter for the local school and health authorities to decide. Ordinarily it is best to have the children pursue their regular routine.

If care is taken to exclude from school all children who show any signs of illness, the others are in no more danger than they would be elsewhere in the community. They are far safer then they would be if kept home from school and then allowed to go to the movies or the theater or to ride in the street cars, or even to play with other children.

In a modern, well-run school constant attention is paid to proper sanitation and ventilation. Exercise, rest, recreation, even nutrition, are all under trained supervision. As a result, not only is the danger of infection minimized, but the general health of the children is so cared for that they are in the best possible condition to resist disease. It is as unwise to interfere with this health program as it is unfortunate to interrupt the program of study.

When a child is sick, however, it is the duty of the mother to co-operate with the school authorities to protect the health of others. To do this it is important to learn to recognize disease at its first appearance. If any one of the ailments of childhood is prevalent in the community, special attention should be paid to symptoms that at another time might be dismissed as "just a cold."

A flushed face, running nose, sickness at the stomach or feeling of discomfort or restlessness is likely to be one of the first signs that something is wrong. The safe thing to do then is to put the child to bed at once and to call the family doctor.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Giving of a Present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When one is only invited to the church to witness a wedding, is it good form to send a wedding gift?

2. Should an introduction take place in a public place such as on a train, depot or the street? If not, isn't it rather awkward, or embarrassing, for instance, in a crowded train to stand between two neighbors whom you know very well, but who do not know each other?

A. A. W.

1. If you are a close friend of the bride or groom or of both, you will probably wish to send a wedding gift. This is the only real test of whether or not you send a wedding present.

2. If there is no point or reason to introduce in public places, it is usually better not to make such an introduction.

But if not making such an introduction causes the slightest embarrassment or awkwardness, the introduction should be made at once.

Usually we sense intuitively when one person feels that he or she should be introduced and wonders at our not making the introduction. Then, of course, we quickly make the introduction. In the circumstances that you name, you certainly, too, should make the introduction.

A Continuous Smile

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have the habit of smiling continuously, and when I am at a party or dance men think I am flirting with them. Would you advise me to hide my smile? V. A. B.

Your expression, I should think, would seem somewhat like an over-worked dental advertisement. Why persist in such continuous smiling? Life, you know, is more interesting if it is composed more of light and shade! The voice with the smile may win, but it gets terribly monotonous if it smiles continuously.

I'd be an ogress if I advised you to "hide your smile," but never would I advise you to "smile continuously." And for more reasons than that men might think that you were trying to flirt with them.

To Offer Assistance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a lady and a gentleman are riding on a street car, train or bus, when getting off who should alight first, the man or woman

2. When a man and a woman are ascending a flight of stairs, who should go first? When descending?

3. When is it proper to excuse yourself for sneezing? Is it necessary to do so in the office?

A. B. and J. N. S.

1. The man steps first from the car or train, and then will be in position to help the lady as she steps from the car.

2. There isn't any rule about this, but I believe that it seems better manners and more convenient if he precedes the woman, both in going up stairs and in coming down stairs.

3. It is never really necessary to excuse yourself after sneezing.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Eruptions on the face are not helped by oily cosmetics, though certain healing ointments containing zinc and sulphur are recommended by those in the know. Soap and water should be used freely. Soap is drying and healing. Starches and sweets should be cut down. Powdering the skin surface with boric acid after the facial sudsing at night brings relief sometimes. The daily bath is a necessary part of the treatment.

Rapid eating is bad for the complexion and it is an insult to one's digestive forces. The stomach, empty and at rest after a fast of four or five hours, awaits the next allotment. It doesn't want it all shoveled in at once. It prefers to receive it a little at a time, so it can stow it away to satisfaction. Food taken slowly is accompanied on its journey by gastric juices, necessary for assimilation and digestive processes. Furthermore, hasty eating isn't a pretty sight. It's piggy.

I felt blue and could cry if anyone looked at me. I could not sleep or eat but I am much better now and am able to work every day. I certainly do recommend the Vegetable Compound and I will write to any woman about it."—Mrs. J. James.

Celery Valuable Food for Overweight People

The low carbohydrate content of celery keeps it from being fattening. In addition it is rich in vitamins and minerals and its bulk makes it helpful to the intestines.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator From New York

Nature has supplied us with vegetables rich in fats and carbohydrates. She has given vegetables which have the minerals and the essential roughage. It requires study to know just which of them and what amount of each is best to include in the diet. This is an important study because the nutritive needs of the body must be met if we are to have health and vigor.

The average adult needs every day not more than three or four ounces of protein, two ounces of fats and from 13 to 16 ounces of carbohydrates—that is, starches and sugars. When you consume more than these quantities, the tendency is to take on weight.

Celery is a vegetable that should be eaten more than it is. For the person who is apt to put on weight it is a godsend.

MUST CHANGE DIET

Most of us are so accustomed to eating the foods that most appeal to us, taking our own particular likings and servings of food, that any attempt to change the program makes us groan and lament. Yet we must substitute those foods that are non-fattening if we are inclined to put on weight.

The quantity of food you consume bears no direct relationship to your body weight. It all depends on how much of the food consumed is fat-producing. To keep your weight right does not mean you have to go around half starved.

I have spoken of celery. Suppose we compare that vegetable with green corn. They are very similar in their content of fats and protein, but corn has 19 per cent of carbohydrates, the fattening substances, while celery has 3 per cent. For this reason, corn is decidedly fattening, while celery is not.

BULK VALUABLE

It is far better to keep thin on cauliflower, cooked onions, cucumbers, carrots and lettuce, which are comparatively low in carbohydrates, than to grow fat on potatoes, lima beans, peas, parsnips and similar vegetables. The latter are rich in carbohydrates.

The chief assets of celery are its vitamin and mineral content, and its bulk. Because of its bulk it assists the intestines in their work. We need fruits and reasonable quantities of bulky vegetables to supply the roughage. They help to prevent constipation, which is one of the most prevalent ailments of our modern day.

When it comes to real food value celery does not furnish us with much. But it is beneficial to mix it with the concentrated foods, such as cheese.

The person who wishes to reduce, should indulge frequently in a salad made of cottage cheese, celery and green lettuce leaves. Here you have an ideal salad, particularly when served with a French dressing made with lemon juice, using a minimum amount of oil.

Celery served in any way is appetizing, but especially is it so when the tender stalks are served ice cold. You can always utilize the larger, coarser stalks in cooking. Soups are flavored with the celery salts, which are made from the ground seed of celery. Excellent soups are made from the water in which the coarser stalks of celery have been boiled. In Europe, the roots of one type of celery are boiled and eaten like turnip, or served cold with a dressing, perhaps in the form of a celery-root salad.

A whole meal cannot be made of celery. But it should have a larger part in the diet of those inclined to overweight.

VETS FAVORED ON DAM JOBS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Former soldiers and native Americans will be given preference for work on the Boulder Canyon Dam project.

Contracts may be drawn with a clause prohibiting employment of alien workers, Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, has been notified by Comptroller General J. R. McCarl.

Aliens who have taken out first papers for naturalization would be eligible, however, under the Comptroller General's ruling.

Mead said that although the Bureau of Reclamation advocated use of veterans and native Americans, final decision rested with the Federal Board of Contracts, which has the power to insert such a conditional clause.

NOTRE DAME GLEE CLUB TO SPUR TEAM TO VICTORY ON AIR TONIGHT

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Notre Dame's Glee Club lends moral encouragement to Notre Dame partisans and the great Rockne team in a double broadcast on the eve of their important game with Army at Soldiers' Field, Chicago. Over WLW at 6:30 and KDKA at 9:30 they're to present songs of the South Bend school as well as songs of their adversary. Dick Hanley, Northwestern coach, whose team took it on the chin last Saturday, is to venture a prophesy in the WLW broadcast. The great Rockne makes his forecast over WJAS at 10:30.

How many remember that thrilling Army-Notre Dame broadcast last year when Jack Elder raced 96 yards for a touchdown in the waning moments of the game?

QUESTION A DAY:

What do you know about the girl who plays "The Music Box" period on WCAE every day at 12:15?—Mrs. E. W., Greenfield.

Answer—The girl is Gertrude Mohr, of Freedom, Pa., musical director of the station. She is a very fine pianist, well schooled in the classics, a teacher, by the way, and a close friend of Charles Wakefield Cadman, the illustrious composer of Indian music. Gertrude always dresses in bright colors, red and blue her favorites, and is fond of poetry, symphonies, good literature. There is no need of a Vitrolly for the announcers when Gertrude is around; she can pronounce with accuracy the names of all great composers and compositions. "The Music Box" is on WCAE every day but Saturday.

Lou Kaufman to Don Bestor—"We have three minutes to go, Don, let's make a touchdown. What's your next play?"

Don—"Wedding of the Birds."

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The perspective of distance continues to be of invaluable aid to the men who write the nation's songs.

The best Broadway dance tunes are written in the semi-tropical luxuriance of Hollywood. The most melodious tributes to mammy were created—and still are—in the tin pan alleys of Manhattan. When Mama Johnson feels a mammy urge creep upon him he does not invade the South for a post laureate. His search does not penetrate further south than Forty-second street.

* * *

Stephen Foster wrote his immortal songs of the South from a shelter in the Bowery. Tschaikowsky's waltzes are not only as haunting as those with a "made in Vienna" label, but are also as sprightly. The most seductive Oriental music was produced in the Russian workshops of Rimsky-Korsakoff and Borodin. One of the greatest of all Spanish serenades was composed by Moszkowski, a Pole.

No Season Over With Notre Dame Active

Sports writers, commenting upon the football season, have actually said in print this week that with the Harvard-Yale game out of the way "anything that now happens on the gridiron becomes more or less of an anti-climax."

"Radio, it seems to me, has changed that conception. Last Saturday it was the Notre Dame-Northwestern game rather than the annual meeting of Yale and Harvard that drew the majority of cars. And the remainder of the football season, which offers to the armchairs the Notre Dame-Army, Army-Navy and Notre Dame-Southern California games, cannot be called an anti-climax.

* * *

Ted Husing kept up a brisk running comment last Saturday from Evanston. He also delved deeper into his dictionary, coming up frequently with such words as "vociferous." The most expert football voice at present on the air is that of Ford Frick. Frick not only knows what each play is all about but he has learned the announcers' secret of conveying excitement. The most pleasing of all sports voices to our ears is that of Bill Munday. His soft Georgia drawl is an effective contrast to the sharp, staccato notes of the other sports broadcasters.

* * *

McNamee and Husing still appear to have a monopoly on the broadcasts of all sports events. Their activities range all the way from marble-shooting to leather-pushing. In the course of a year they travel more than 100,000 miles that the thrill of competition may come to the armchair arena.

BAN HEAVY CARS ON ETNA SPAN

The Crescent Avenue Bridge, Etna, has been closed to heavy traffic pending completion of major repairs, borough officials announced. The borough has notified the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Pittsburgh, Mars and Butler Railways Company that heavy cars will not be permitted to use the span.

At the request of David I. McCahill, president of the interurban line, the cars of this line will be permitted to operate over the bridge until the first of the month. After this date the Butler Short Line cars will travel inbound as far as Dewey street, Etna, and return from that point. Passengers can change to city cars at Dewey street.

To avoid inconveniences to through passenger traffic, more busses will be added to the Harmony Short Line Motor Transportation Company. The busses are not affected by the closing of the bridge.

W. Va. Will Lease Big Game Preserve

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 28.—Because revenues from state fishing and hunting licenses have slumped enormously, causing a curtailment of expenses, the West Virginia State Game, Fish and Forestry Commission, has been forced to try leasing its 17,000-acre game farm at French Creek, Upshur County, to a responsible person or firm. It would be leased, it is stated, for the purpose of raising quail and turkeys, which the commission will purchase.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Ben Lomond, famous mountain in Scotland and renowned in song and story, has been sold.

The mountain peak was part of 10,000 acres of the Rowardennan estate in Stirlingshire, Scotland, belonging to the Duke of Montrose. The name of the purchaser was not revealed.

Last June the Duke of Montrose offered part of his acres to the government upon his death in lieu of death duties upon his estate.

ACT TO PREVENT COAL STRIKE

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—A decision expected to avert a threatened stoppage of work in the great South Wales coal fields Monday was taken by the National Coal Board.

While the decision was not announced officially, it was learned in high authority the board had come to the unanimous conclusion there should be no reduction in wages when the coal miner's act goes into operation Monday. The board's conclusion was embodied in a report forwarded to the owners and miners' executives for consideration.

The act reduces the hours of work from eight to seven and a half.

Heller on Rampage as Pitt Defeats Penn State in Cold :-: Baker Also Scores

HELLER'S 30-YARD SPRINT FOR FIRST TOUCHDOWN

LIONS BACK ON TURKEY DAY IN 1932

EVEN THOUGH THE dope held true in the matter of a Pitt victory, and Penn State failed to interrupt its record of not having defeated the Panthers since 1919, the Lions must be given credit for making the Thanksgiving Day game much more of a real battle than had been anticipated and one that left a good taste on both sides. For Pitt followers there was the satisfaction of a cleanly earned 19-to-12 victory after a well-played game to bring the season to a creditable conclusion, and for State adherents there was the gratification of a showing far better than previous form had indicated as probable. There was glory for the losers as well as for the winners in such a hard-fought contest.

Warren Heller

The Lions did themselves proud in defeat. They flashed a splendid defense, and though their offensive power had appeared to be limited when they scored only seven points in the preceding five games, the fact remains that they were the only team except Notre Dame and Ohio State to make more than one touchdown against the Sutherlands this year. Indeed, it was only the two sensational touchdown runs of 30 and 80 yards by the brilliant Warren Heller that stood between them and victory. In view of their fine showing, and the satisfying game, local fans will be pleased to learn that the interruption of the Pitt-State meeting next year as a Thanksgiving Day attraction, a change made at State's request, is not to be permanent after all. The Panthers will play in State College next season, but the Lions will be back here as the Turkey Day card in 1932. Schedule arrangements after that will depend upon developments.

THE DUKES MADE it a complete day of success for Pittsburgh teams by registering a 15-to-6 victory over Providence College in the morning game at Forbes Field. It was an impressive exhibition with which the Bluffites wound up the campaign, the touchdown play after a 28-yard run being the only occasion on which the visitors were able to get within scoring distance.

The winning of seven out of 10 games by Duquesne this fall was a creditable achievement in view of the hard nature of the schedule. In fact, that goes for the entire period of Elmer Layden's coaching regime, in which the Red and Blue has won 29 games, tied two and lost eight in four years.

PITT AND THE Dukes completed their schedules for the year with the playing of yesterday's games, but one attractive game still remains on the local slate, and the curtain will not fall on Pittsburgh's football season until Carnegie Tech and W. & J. have staged their big charity number at the Stadium a week from tomorrow. The game has been postponed a week because of the extremely cold weather visiting the city at this time.

The local windup will be a notable one at any rate, for in addition to the appeal that the card holds in being played for the benefit of the unemployed, with the Scots and Presidents turning over their shares of the receipts and Pitt donating the use of the Stadium, the game promises to be a stirring battle in itself, in view of the vastly improved form shown by Wash-Jeff in winning its last four contests.

Saul Lipman

AN INCIDENTAL FEATURE of the charity game on the Presidents' side will be the final appearance in the Wash-Jeff lineup of two Pittsburgh boys who have been important cogs in the Red and Black machine for three seasons. They are Lipman at right tackle and Cochran at left guard. Both former Schenley High School players, they have made splendid records in college football since entering W. & J., participating in 22 varsity games in the last three campaigns and being important factors in keeping up Wash-Jeff's high standard of line strength. Not only have their athletic careers been brilliant, but both also rank high scholastically. Cochran is chief of the Pandora and Lipman is a three-year veteran of the debating team, as well as a member of the Presidents' Council.

THOUGH THERE ARE four intersectional games of wide interest on the football card for tomorrow, with Washington State's Pacific Coast Conference champions meeting Villanova in Philadelphia, Dartmouth grappling with Pop Warner's Stanford team out in Palo Alto, Drake facing Temple in Philadelphia, and Detroit clashing with Georgetown in Detroit, the national top-liner, of course, will be the battle between Notre Dame and the Army in Chicago.

Even in ordinary years, this annual tussle is one of football's biggest features. From "just a football game" at West Point, where it had its first nine stagings, starting in 1913, it grew in importance and popularity to such an extent that it had to be moved to the large cities. It was played at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn in 1923, at the Polo Grounds in New York in 1924, at the Yankee Stadium in New York the next five years, and now goes to Soldier Field in Chicago.

FROM ONLY A few hundred spectators at the first meeting of the teams 17 years ago, the attendance increased to 80,000 in recent years, and tomorrow it will top all previous marks with a crowd approximating 125,000.

This will be the seventeenth battle in the series. Notre Dame

Pitt's Golden Panthers won the thirty-third renewal of the annual Thanksgiving Day gridiron classic with Penn State, the Panthers nosing out the Lions, 19 to 12, in the Stadium yesterday afternoon. The contest, which should have been played in a igloo, was attended by a shivering crowd of about 11,000.

Warren Heller, Pitt's big left halfback, was just what his name implies to State as he led the Pitt arms to victory. Heller raced through State's defense for two touchdowns, sprinting 30 yards for one and 80 for the other. The third score was escorted across by Capt. Eddie Baker, who took a pass in the end zone flung by Southpaw Josh Williams.

State tallied in the third period after a long forward pass, French to Deidrich, put the ball on the four-yard mark and Fullbacker Lasich plunged it across. In the final quarter, after Pitt had scored its 19 points, the Lions blocked a Panther punt and Edwards, veteran State end, caught the ball while still in the air and ran 26 yards and over the goal line.

LIONS FIGHT HARD

The Lions made a real contest of it all the way, threatening on more than one occasion to punch through the Panther defense. Heller's running and the fine work of the Pitt line on the attack was too tough a combination for the Lions to overcome, however, and the locals made it nine in a row.

Individual starring honors were shared by Franklin Hood, Charley Tully, Heller and Capt. Eddie Baker, for Pitt, and by Capt. Deidrich, Cooper, French, Ben Shawley and the two ends, Kaplan and Edwards, for State. Red Duvall, a substitute guard, was inserted into the ball game by State in the second quarter when Pitt had the ball on the four-yard line, first down, and he thrice checked Franklin Hood as the latter essayed to crack the Lion line. He too must be awarded a leaf or two from the laurel wreath.

The first period was scoreless. State missed an opportunity to score after Evans recovered Hood's fumble on Pitt's 34-yard line when a bad pass from center resulted in a 15-yard loss. French and Baker spent most of the period exchanging kicks, with the Panther leader having a slight advantage.

TECH-W. & J. BATTLE MOVED TO DEC. 6

Carnegie Tech and Washington and Jefferson College will battle on the Stadium gridiron for the benefit of the unemployed a week from tomorrow, instead of tomorrow, Clarence (Buddy) Overend, graduate manager of athletics at the Skibo institution, announced late last night.

The game was postponed, Overend said, because of the cold spell now sweeping Pittsburgh. It is hoped that the weather will be more desirable a week from tomorrow, or December 6, for the thousands of grid fans who are expected to attend the conflict in an effort to aid the needy.

The net proceeds of the engagement will be turned over to Mayor Kline's special committee to be distributed to alleviate the suffering of the jobless.

GROVERS BLANK THIEL, 13-0

GROVE CITY, Pa., Nov. 28.—Thiel's fighting warriors were overpowered by Grove City's determined eleven, 13-0, in their annual holiday battle here yesterday. The teams have deadlocked for the last two years.

Capt. Kammer's dashes and the Grovers' strong line upset Thiel. Kammer scored the first touchdown in the first quarter when he took the ball over following a 45-yard run. After two plays through the line, the local leader stepped 13 yards to score. The extra point failed on a line play.

In the second quarter, after kicking to Thiel's three-yard line, and recovering the ball on Wardle's back kick to the 20, Koma advanced the ball to the 10-yard line. Kammer was forced out of bounds on the three, and then Baylor went over for the second touchdown. Kammer added the extra point on a line plunge. The lineup:

Critchfield	L. E.	Kurtz
Foti	L. T.	Abraham

Five Trojans Hurt In Washington Fray

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Five Trojan football warriors were convalescing in a hospital here today, the price the University of Southern California paid for its 32-to-0 Thanksgiving Day victory over Washington's hardy Huskies.

Two of them, Erny Pinckert, the class of the Pacific Coast backfield aces, and Ray Sparling, one of Coach Howard Jones' rapidly dwindling stock of good ends, may not be able to take up the cause of Troy in the intersectional clash with Notre Dame a week from tomorrow.

The casualty list follows:

Pinckert, badly bruised; Sparling, twisted knee; Orville Mohler, quarterback, minor head injury; Bob Hall, tackle, leg bruise, not serious; Byron Gentry guard, gash in leg, not serious.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

The Yellow Jackets, who have shown improvement in each and every game, expect to climax their betterment campaign with a victory when they meet the Detroit Olympics at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night.

Held scoreless in the first two games, and presenting an uncertain defense, the Schooley skaters got away to a shaky start, but in holding the Windsor Bulldogs to a 4-4 tie here Tuesday the Jackets made it apparent that reinforcements and replacements had greatly strengthened both departments.

The Detroiters boast victories over Syracuse and the strong London club, and they figure to give the Jackets plenty of opposition. Emmett Venne, their goalie, and Carol (Buzz) Williams, center, figure to graduate to the National League within another season, and Dave Gilhooley, left wing, and Harold Taber, right wing, are said to be skaters of exceptional promise.

The Olympics play an "open" game. They ever have been willing to give a goal to get a goal, and the contest should be a thriller from start to finish.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,

Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 70.

Connie Mack.

When our team was founded in 1901, we were incorporated under the name of the American Baseball Club of Philadelphia, and that name is the only one used on our stationery. It's our official name and there is no other.

Many years before the expansion of the American League, Philadelphia was represented in the old American Association by the Athletic Baseball Club, a legal title.

In time the National League swallowed the American Association and only the Philadelphia National League team had the legal right to use the name "Athletics." They took over the Athletics and had full rights to their assets, even their name.

The Phillies never made any use of the name "Athletics", if they absorbed the other assets.

"ATHLETICS" MISNOMER

The name Athletics was scrapped and it became only a memory to Philadelphia baseball followers of other days when they had another league in the city.

Then came 1901 and an American League team. For some reason, which I am at a loss to explain, newspapers began referring to my team right at the start as the "Athletics."

I was too busy getting affairs started to worry much on that score until one morning, Benjamin F. Shibe, our president, told me that he had been threatened with a damage suit by the Phillies and that he was to meet one of the officers of the club that day to see what it was about.

Mr. Shibe met the Phillies' official, who declared that he was going to sue him for pirating the name "Athletics," which belonged to his club.

Now Mr. Shibe had a quick brain and never was embarrassed in a situation like this. He replied:

"'Athletics?' What do you mean? Our club is incorporated as 'The American Baseball Club of Philadelphia.' That's our legal title, so what is your objection?"

"Well, the newspapers call you the 'Athletics' and that name belongs to us."

THE WHITE ELEPHANTS

The name has clung to us ever since and even in the American League percentage table through the season the name Athletics is preferred by most newspapers to Philadlphia.

We also bear the nickname of White Elephants. That came of an amusing incident of the warring days between the two leagues when a friend of ours on the other side insisted that the Shibes and myself had "a white elephant on our hands."

That name also came to stay, and a figure of a white elephant is generally designed on the uniforms and coats of our players, while our offices are filled with representations of white elephants in many conceits.

Without the financial aid of the late Benjamin F. Shibe, the Athletics never could have met with prosperity. His backing gave us a start and it was his money that built Shibe Park when we outgrew old Columbia Park.

Mr. Shibe was a man of the utmost integrity, keen and alive, and his sagacity carried the Athletics' ship away from many a reef. Mr. Shibe was president of the club for 21 years and then died at a ripe old age.

REGIME OF SHIBES

At his death, Thomas S. Shibe, his son, succeeded him as president, and has held the office ever since. The son had been associated with the club with his father since its inception, and was well equipped for the new role.

He always has been active in club affairs and also is a valued man in American League councils.

John D. Shibe, a brother, and vice president of the club, also was connected with the club from the start. He controls the park and all business details.

He personally has supervised all of the many enlargements made since the park was opened in 1909. The park is the particular hobby of the vice president and its present efficiency is due to his untiring efforts.

I might add that the Athletics' club is a closed corporation and owned exclusively by the Shibes and myself.

OREGON AGGIES TOP W. VA.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Oregon State's powerful football machine defied the discouraging elements of snow, ice and near zero weather yesterday to conquer the fighting Mountaineers from the University of West Virginia, 12 to 0, in the first annual Shriners' charity game at Soldier Field.

Stopped for half the game by a valiant Mountaineer stand, and the almost impossible playing conditions, the Pacific Coast stars suddenly clicked effectively behind their ace, Bill McKalip, in the third period, hammered across two touchdowns and then settled back to a more comfortable and less hazardous defensive play for the rest of the battle.

In a preliminary, teams of former Notre Dame and Northwestern stars played a scoreless tie. The lineup of the big game:

But no matter how low the thermometer falls, Mobilgas is ready to start your car — and to start it quicker. This modernized gasoline has behind it the same skill, experience and quality that have made its companion, Mobiloil Arctic, the world's most trusted oil in below-zero temperatures.

And all our pumps now have Mobilgas for winter.

Start your car quicker on Mobilgas. And save! Save the battery-killing grind on your starter. Shorten the long pulls on the choke that flood the carburetor and thin oil to the danger point. Save, too, on the price of Mobilgas—for it costs no more than regular gasolines.

IRISH WARRIORS FAVORED TO BEAT CADETS

125,000 MAY SEE CONFLICT TOMORROW

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—While football's thousands are preparing in various ways for tomorrow's spectacle in Soldier Field, as Notre Dame and Army clash in the seventeenth game of their classical series, the Irish and Cadet squads today will put the final polish to the armaments they expect to use against one another tomorrow.

Snow and intense cold are the foes of each today. Both elevens are to drill on Soldier Field this afternoon, the Cadets first and the Irish later. Then they'll be hidden away until game time.

The largest crowd that has attended a game this season, and possibly the largest in football history, is expected to turn out tomorrow. The advance sale indicates a crowd certain to pass the 120,000 mark and a turnout of 125,000, which will beat the former record gathering of 123,000 which saw the Irish and the Navy here last year, appears likely.

IRISH HOLD EDGE

This Army-Notre Dame game, the first nine of which were played at West Point, has usurped the color and popularity, to say nothing of importance, that formerly attended the meetings between Army and Navy. Notre Dame holds a decided edge in the matter of games won, having taken 12 out of the 16 played. The last Army victory was recorded in 1925.

The principal question being raised here today in pre-battle conjecturing regards Army's backfield and whether or not Rockne will start his shock troops or his first-stringers against the Cadets. The Army is expected to flash a brand new backfield combination. Rockne's bruised regulars, hammered and battered in the struggle with Northwestern last week, may get a rest, and again they may not. The Army, especially with Notre Dame in the far from fine physical condition it now is, is no ball club to fool with, for the Cadets are big and the Cadets are tough.

Notre Dame, undefeated, rules a 5-to-1 favorite. The Army, too, is unbeaten, but the Cadets were tied by Yale. Besides, West Point suffered a blow when Cy Letzelter, the sophisticated young halfback, who formerly performed in Carnegie Tech's backfields, was ruled ineligible when it was found he had entered the military academy over age.

YAROSZ BOXES JIMMY NEAL

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, one of the most promising of the younger boxers in the Pittsburgh district, makes his second start in a windup here tonight, when he faces Jimmy Neal, of Cincinnati, in the 10-round feature event of the weekly card in the Moose Temple downtown. A few months ago Ted was sent against Tiger Joe Randall, Negro welterweight puncher, of Elizabeth, as an eleventh-hour substitute for Tom Malco, of Soho, at Hickey Park, Millvale, and surprised the talent by turning in a handy victory.

In fact this kid has not yet been defeated in his professional career. He boxes coolly and cleverly and has the earmarks of a youngster who is going somewhere. We'll know more about his prospects after tonight's fight, for Neal has boxed a lot of experienced scrappers and boasts a fine record of wins. The victor tonight has been promised a bout with Joey Goodman, of Cleveland, in the same ring.

GALLAGHER VS. NOVAK

Promoter Apples Meyers has lined up a good preliminary card. He has Dan Gallagher, of the West End, and Frank Novak, of the North Side, heavyweights, in the semi-final. This pair set the fans on their ears in a second preliminary in the same ring two weeks ago, and Gallagher, the winner, followed up with a knockout victory over another opponent in two rounds last week. Novak is anxious to obtain revenge and the return go is apt to be more spirited than his first meeting with the elongated Gallagher.

Al Iovino, of Swissvale, and Mose Butch, of Oakland, southpaw bantamweights, box the second bout, and Jackie Wilson, of Homewood, and Bud Maloney, of the North Side, bantams, open the show.

Between Rounds

Al Friedman, Jewish heavyweight, of Boston, who meets Ernest Rocco, of Elwood City, in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, has been rematched with Dirk Daniels, of Minneapolis, in Boston, December 15. Last Monday night, Friedman got up off the floor in the first round to come on and defeat Daniels, one of the best young fellows in the game. Friedman is one of the busiest boxers in action these days. Every week sees him go to the post once or twice. No other heavyweight boxes as often; in fact, he is a veritable Harry Greb for work.

Don Frazier, local Negro featherweight, who defeated Joe Basone and Johnny Haggerty his last two times out, complains that he is not getting his share of Italic work. In other words, that he is one of the victims of the unemployment situation. Don, who came here from Chicago, is a pleasing performer and really merits more consideration from the matchmakers.

Jimmy Slavin boxes Joe Scalfaro and Lew Feldman meets Pete Detrasse in 10-round preliminaries to the Fidel LaBarba-Bud Taylor bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight. Charley Raymond and Fred Monte top another New York bill, Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion, takes on K. O. Christner in a non-title bout in Chicago, and Frankie Cawley and Paul Swiderski tie into each other at Wilkes-Barre.

early in the second quarter with the ball on the 20-yard line made the situation for State very acute. French punted out and Bleier, playing at safety position for the Panthers, returned the kick from the 46-yard line to the 36. Heller raced off tackle for 11 yards and then Reider and Hood combined to smash it to the 13. Hood was good for eight more on a buck at center and Reider put it over the four-yard stripe. Four times Hood drove at the left side of the Lion defense, and four times he was stopped. State finally took the ball on downs.

HELLER SCORES

Again Pitt got possession of the ball after French kicked out on the 36. A forward pass failed and Heller cut off left tackle for six yards. On the next play, a straight shot inside left end, the big Steelton lad cut back through the right side of the State secondary and ran 30 yards for a touchdown. Baker's try for the extra point was a fizzle.

The teams spent the remainder of the half kicking back and forth, although Daily, Panther left end, let a pass hit him on the chest that he might have caught and converted into a touchdown, inasmuch as he had a clear field between himself and the goal.

A long forward pass, tossed by French and expertly caught by Deidrich, put State right into the ball game up to its ears early in the third period. The pass sailed through the air 31 yards and Deidrich raced 32 after pulling it down. He was upset on the four-yard line by Heller. Then he charged off tackle for a yard, but Fullback Lasich powerhoused his way through left guard for the touchdown.

State threatened again shortly afterward when French intercepted a Pitt pass on his own 45 and raced back to the Pitt 22. The running attack was smothered by Pitt's aroused line and Deidrich tried for a placement goal from the 25-yard mark. The kick was high enough and far enough, but was off to the side.

MAKES 80-YARD RUN

Pitt scrimmaged the ball on the 20-yard line, and, lo and behold, in the very first play, Heller broke loose and ran 80 yards for another touchdown, getting away on the self same play that was used for his run in the second quarter. This time, Baker's boot was true and he added the thirteenth point.

Just before the quarter ended, French passed to Deidrich for a 37-yard gain, and the Lions held the ball on Pitt's 37-yard mark to open the fourth and final 15-minute session.

The teams exchanged punts and Pitt wound up with the ball on its own 29-yard line. Here began a sensational march that carried the ball steadily down the field and finally brought about the third tally. Heller was the big shot of this drive, ably assisted by Hood. A forward pass, Heller to Reider, was good for 21 yards and a first down on the four-yard line, and from that point Williams southpawed one to Baker as the latter raced into the end zone. Capt. Eddie missed the try-for-point.

State brought the hearts to the mouths, or, at least, the throats, of Pitt's cohorts by a splendid rally that scored one more touchdown and threatened to score another. Coach Sutherland inserted a flock of reserves after the third score, and the first thing State did was to block a punt. The ball rocomed into the air and when it came down it found safe resting place in the arms of Edwards, Lion right end, who sprinted 26 yards for a touchdown. Again State messed up its chance for the extra point when the center let go a bad pass.

STATE RECOVERS KICKOFF

On the succeeding kickoff, State got away with a short boot that was recovered in Pitt's territory. The Lions tried nobly to get away with some long passes, but all were broken down. Interference was ruled on one that gave the Lions possession of the ball on Pitt's 42, but the game ended before another play could be run off.

Gettysburg Grads Banquet Tonight

The Pittsburgh chapter of the Gettysburg College Alumni Association will hold its annual banquet tonight in the Hotel Henry.

Among the guests will be John Holahan, graduate manager of athletics at Duquesne University, and Andy Gustafson, former University of Pittsburgh fullback and now assistant coach at Pitt.

DUKES DEFEAT PROVIDENCE

A frozen crowd of 1,500 saw the Duquesne University eleven wind up its season with a 15-6 victory over Providence College on the snow-covered Forbes Field gridiron yesterday morning.

The Dukes started a reverse lineup, which was scored on after an exchange of punts following the Dukes' kickoff, the ball being carried back to the locals' 27-yard line. Following a gain of two yards, a reverse play from Quarterback Bleiler to Halfback Foster sent the latter around left end for the visitors' only touchdown. A forward pass for the extra point failed.

With the Dukes' regulars entering the game, the locals scored early in the second period when they recovered a fumbled punt on the Providence 18-yard line, and Burns took a forward pass from Benedict from the 15-yard line on the one-yard line and stepped over the final marker. The kick for the extra point was blocked.

Later in the period, a Providence punt from its 15-yard line was blocked and the ball rolled behind the end zone for an automatic safety, the Dukes leading, 8-6, at the half.

The final tally came in the fourth period, when the Dukes received a Providence punt on the latter's 46-yard line and marched over the goal, McCarthy bucking the ball over in three tries from the 10-yard line. Kovalcheck, relieving McCarthy, kicked the try-for-point. The lineup:

MARSHALL, WES'EYAN TIE

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Marshall College and West Virginia Wesleyan battled to a 6-6 tie here yesterday. Paul Beveridge starred for Wesleyan in the nip and tuck contest while Stark, Woodrum and McEwan were the principal ground gainers for Marshall.

Cornell Defeats Penn; Viviano Stars

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Cornell came back into its own to defeat its old jinx, Penn, in their annual Thanksgiving Day game at Philadelphia yesterday, 13-7, with 70,000 chilled spectators looking on.

Bart Viviano, sophomore halfback, was the star of the Big Red. He scored one touchdown and paved the way for the other. Cornell played through the game with only one substitution, made when Leuder, left end, was carried injured from the field.

Long's Sport Comment

has won 11 times to the Army's four, and one game, that of 1922, resulted in a scoreless tie. The Cadets' victories were scored in 1914, 1916, 1925 and 1927. The only break in the series occurred in 1918, when it was interrupted by the war. Jack Elder's great run won for the Irish last year, 7 to 0.

Dan Hanley

THIS YEAR THE struggle is of even greater interest than usual because it is the next to last hurdle in the path of Notre Dame's greatest team in its sensational drive toward the mythical national championship. The Generals' chances of stopping Rockne's stars before the Southern California game on December 6 do not look as good as they looked a week ago. It has been demonstrated since that time that in Dan Hanley, alternating with Moon Mullins, the South Benders have a new fullback capable of filling Joe Savoldi's place well enough to keep the team from losing confidence and being weakened, perhaps fatally, as a result. In anything close to normal form, the Irish have a distinct edge on the face of the season's records, particularly since the Army's power has been reduced by the loss of Cy Letzelter, formr Carnegie Tech star. It will be a spirited argument all the way, no doubt, but only an unlooked for form reversal can keep Notre Dame from winning.

JACK KEARNS, former manager of Jack Dempsey and now directing the fistic affairs of Mickey Walker, is reputed to be one of the smartest skippers in the glove game, but he isn't living up to his rating in that respect in one detail of the big ballyhoo he is trying to put across for a fight between Walker and Max Schmeling, heavyweight title holder, in Chicago next year.

Gorgeously printed folders have been received from the Kearns headquarters heralding the proposed Schmeling-Walker battle and announcing the date as May 31. Kearns has also been filling the newspapers, East and West, with statements that the match is as good as clinched for that date. That might be O. K. over in Spain, where Primo Carnera and Paulino Uzcudun are to meet day after tomorrow, but in this country Kearns probably will have to make some slight change in his plans. For May 31 next year will fall on Sunday, and heavyweight championship fights on that day have not yet become the style in this part of the globe, even in Chicago.

WHILE NO TITLE will be at stake on either event, tonight's fight card will present a couple of bouts of more than ordinary interest, with Fidel La Barba meeting Bud Taylor for 10 rounds in New York and Mickey Walker taking on K. O. Christner for the same distance in Chicago.

On the strength of his recent victory over Kid Chocolate, La Barba shapes up as likely to defeat Taylor, who, though still good, has seen his best days. Walker, who has adopted the safer course of meeting washed-up heavyweights rather than defend his own middleweight title, ought to beat Christner as handily as he defeated Johnny Risko recently. Young Stribling not long ago stopped Christner in three rounds.

Bud Taylor

ACCORDING TO HIS own dope, Taylor will qualify for a ranking as the best featherweight in the world if he beats La Barba tonight, as he rates Fidel as the greatest fighter in that class, with Chocolate second, Earl Mastro third and Champion Battalino fourth. "La Barba is the best featherweight in the game," Taylor told Wilbur Wood. "Naturally, I have to leave myself out of consideration when I talk about featherweights. You can put me wherever I belong in that list after I box La Barba. If I beat him—and, of course, I expect to do just that—you'll know where I belong. La Barba is a better fighter than in his earlier years. He used to fire a left hook, grab, step back and keep going that way. Now he fires a left hook as he comes in, and when he gets inside he keeps right on punching." Taylor doesn't figure on fighting much longer than next summer. A veteran of 11 years of ring campaigning, during which he has saved about $200,000 out of his earnings in more than 160 fights, he says he has no intention of staying in the game long enough to become merely a stepping stone for ambitious youngsters. He wants to stay only until his manager, Eddie Long, can dig up another money-maker to take his place. Taylor and Long have been together 11 years, their partnership outliving that of any other present-day fistic firm.

Irish-Cadet Game Tomorrow on Air

Another classic grid tilt—that between Notre Dame and Army in Chicago tomorrow—will be brought to Western Pennsylvania radio listeners by the Columbia Broadcasting System and WJAS. Ted Husing again will give all of the thrilling details. The broadcast will start at 2:15.

Announcement was made by KDKA today that, due to the fact that the Tech-W. & J. game scheduled for tomorrow has been postponed one week, it also will broadcast the Army-Notre Dame game.

Ripley CREATOR OF BELIEVE IT or NOT— PROVES IT

OLD GOLD WINS CLOSE VERDICT..

Cincinnati Smokers give it victory in 7 out of 8 "precincts" in city-wide taste-test of 4 Leading Cigarettes

"Well, I got my wish! I've been hoping for something more exciting than the usual OLD GOLD walk-away victory.

"And . . . believe it or not . . . in my latest, OLD GOLD almost lost!

"It happened in Cincinnati. For three days, I tested smokers in every walk of life. They sampled the four leading brands with names concealed . . . picked the one each liked best.

"One small group of 14 smokers turned in a verdict against OLD GOLD. But at Shipley's Restaurant, the Cincinnati Enquirer, the Times Star, Cincinnati Post, Crosley Radio Co., Advertisers Club and Cincinnati Club, OLD GOLD maintained its winning streak.

"Which only goes to show that, while OLD GOLD may lose in small tests, you can't defeat it in groups large enough to be truly representative of the American taste in cigarettes."

HEAD OF CLOSED BANK ENDS LIFE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—With a shoe lace drawn around his neck, the body of R. E. Donnell, 63, president of the closed Liberty Bank and Trust Company, an institution which he organized, was found in a hotel room here early today.

Search for Donnell had been made for several hours before it was learned he had registered at the hotel. Repeated telephone calls to the room went unanswered and the door was opened. M. D. Johnson, assistant cashier of the bank, identified the body.

An envelope on which was written "To Ridley E. Donnell, Jr., from Daddy," and containing his watch and chain, was found in his vest pocket. The lace from his left shoe had been removed and tied around his neck over a handkerchief.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN SNOW

SOMERSET, Pa., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The body of a woman who left her home in Jenner Township Monday to carry lunch to her husband at a nearby mine, has been found in a snowdrift. Whether she was a victim of cold weather prevailing in this section or a heart attack, brought on by the exertion of plodding through the snow, was undetermined.

The body, that of Mrs. Anna Wojciechowski, was located by a son and was conveyed to the home shortly after two other children, residents of Cleveland, had arrived for Thanksgiving.

Search for the woman had been in progress ever since she failed to return from the trip to the mine. There was 10 inches of snow and the mercury registered near the zero mark here.

Today two high-geared automobiles carrying five men came into Bloomingdale. Two state troopers and two police chiefs called on the drivers to halt when they approached the bank. Police opened fire as the leading machine spurted ahead.

KILLS HIS WIFE, DAUGHTER, SELF

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Shortly before he was to have been host at a Thanksgiving dinner and family reunion Albert Tarlo, 50, president and treasurer of the woodworking concern of Robert Tarlo and Sons, shot his wife and daughter to death as they slept in their home and killed himself by firing a bullet through his head.

The only other person in the house at the time of the triple slaying was Tarlo's father-in-law Louis Koc, 80, a music teacher, who discovered the bodies and summoned friends and physicians. A few hours later relatives and friends from this city and other parts of the state began to arrive for the Thanksgiving reunion and feast.

Rome Agog as Turk Visits King, Il Duce

ROME, Nov. 28.—(INS.)—King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Benito Mussolini received Tewfik Rushdi Bey, visiting foreign minister of Turkey, at the palace here. The statesman's presence in Rome has started wide speculation over the political significance of the visit.

KONJOLA ENDS NEURITIS PAIN

Mother Finds Glorious Relief—Then Gave New and Different Medicine to Little Daughter.

Here is cheerful news for those who suffer the pangs and tortures of neuritis, and who may fear there is no relief from this dread ailment.

MRS. EUNICE McMAHON and Daughter

Consider the happy experience of Mrs. Eunice McMahon, 7952 Tioga Street, Wilkinsburg, near Pittsburgh. Then call at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city, and hear what Konjola has actually done for tens of thousands who suffered from stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, or from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Then, after you have all the facts about Konjola's astounding record of success, decide what you will do about Konjola.

But right now read the grateful words of Mrs. McMahon:

"I suffered terribly from neuritis in my shoulder and back for the past year. At times the pain seemed unbearable. It felt like a knife sticking into me. I lost much time from work, and no medicine I tried helped me a bit. But the first bottle of Konjola eased the pain, and six more banished every last trace of neuritis. Konjola has done much to benefit my daughter, Virginia, three, and I am certainly glad to recommend Konjola."

Capone Feeds 5,000 At Beef Stew Dinner

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(INS.)—Beef stew instead of turkey comprised the entree at "Scarface" Al Capone's State street relief station, where he played host to 5,000 Thanksgiving Day guests. Absence of the favourite Thanksgiving Day fowl was regarded as a discreet move on Capone's part, as someone stole 1,000 dressed turkeys the day before, and Capone did not want to be suspected, it was said.

Bennett Bequest To Home $6,500,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The James Gordon Bennett Memorial Home for New York journalists will receive ultimately more than $6,500,000 from the estate of the late publisher by virtue of increases shown in two accountings filed in surrogates' court. The state tax commission appraised the estate in 1923 at $4,850,000. Mr. Bennett died in 1918.

Sunbury Airport Saved by Pledges

SUNBURY, Pa., Nov. 28.—(INS.)—Sunbury's airport today was apparently saved as a landing field for planes carrying air mail. At a conference with Mayor Heckart and the city commission, A. W. Pontius and G. S. Cuyer, owners of the field, agreed to pay $200 for lights for the field while the Sunbury Flying Club promised to pay $400 rental and any other money it earns to upkeep the field.

HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY GOSSIP; REVIEWS OF NEW TALK FILMS

(Copyright, 1930, by Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.

The supporting cast gained another important name in Reginald Denny. Others who'll play in the talkie-farce will be Charlotte Greenwood, Natalie Moorhead and Sally Eilers.

Inasmuch as rehearsals for the picture start today, Natalie Moorhead's wedding plans would seem to have gone awry. She and Alan Crosland, the director, had intended to take the vows almost immediately. They still could get away for a week-end, but would have to forego a honeymoon.

Buster Keaton

PERNICIOUS PARAPHRASING

"About 'Those Three Little Words'—account past due?"

WILL IT NEVER END?

"Can't somebody stop them?" queried Bill Oliver. "First it was 'Holiday,' then 'Death Takes a Holiday' and now 'Sin Takes a Holiday.' Pretty soon, the audience will take a holiday."

HAMILTON SIGNED

Neil Hamilton

A series of indifferent roles had threatened to kill this actor's popularity. Then came "The Dawn Patrol," in which Hamilton gave an authoritative performance.

He has been deluged with offers ever since. At the moment he is appearing in "The Command Performance" for James Cruze.

When he finishes there, Fox has signed him for one of the masculine leads in "Three Girls Lost." The rest of the cast for this picture remains to be chosen.

EVERY DOLLAR A TEAR

Al Jolson was aghast that his $300,000 loss on the stock market got only two lines mention in this column. Now it develops that Al has dropped a total of $814,000. In all fairness, he deserves these extra lines.

THEY WORK FAST

On his return, he was talking to Constance Bennett. The radio was playing and a word in the song reminded him of the idea. He started to relate it, and Constance was enthusiastic.

As a result, they called New York at 2 a. m and got Ernest Pascal out of bed. After listening to a brief synopsis over long distance, he agreed to write the story.

New Hiller Revue In Show Boat Club

Bernard and Henry head the new bill opening at the Show Boat, floating cabaret, tonight. These feminine singers have appeared in Broadway revues. Other features will be Caroline Naldi, formerly with George White Scandals, and Moore and Revel, English comedy dancers. Wally Vernon will continue as master of ceremonies. Joe Hiller and Lou Bolton staged the show.

PLENTY SPARKLE, NOT MUCH SIN IN NEW BENNETT FILM

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Constance Bennett, the little girl who so well depicted the Our Nell theme in "Common Clay," is now appearing on both the Fulton and Sheridan Square screens in "Sin Takes a Holiday." But don't be misled by the title. There is more spice and more sparkle than sin.

The picture plot is that of a man who marries to escape trouble and of a girl who marries to escape poverty. Which makes it anything but a love match.

Away to Paris goes the bride on a lonely honeymoon. But it isn't lonely for long. Basil Rathbone shows up in that suave way of his on the boat and by the time land is reached the two are old friends. Follow receptions, a photo in a magazine and closeups of an extravagant villa.

A COLD DINNER

And in the meantime the bridegroom in New York, who is a philandering fellow, tires of his philandering and finally wakes up to the fact that he's in love with his far-away bride. Which is the old absence - makes - the-heart-grow-fonder idea again. So when she suddenly arrives home, she gets a warm welcome from him. But his jealous lady friend is there with a frigid stare and lot of catty words.

WOMEN THIS TIME

Kenneth MacKenna portrays the husband part. He's the gentleman who featured the cast in "Men Without Women" and his present role seems to be plenty compensation for his appearance in that womanless film.

"Sin Takes a Holiday" is gay and sophisticated entertainment. It has some clever and amusing dialogue and all of the players are efficient in their parts.

THEATER GUILD REVUE AND COMEDY COMING

"June Moon" is announced for the next attraction in the Shubert Alvin, beginning Monday. The play was written by Ring Lardner, humorist, and by George S. Kaufman, who has a long line of theatrical successes to his credit. Mr. Lardner had his first play, "Elmer the Great," produced on Broadway last season by George M. Cohan. "June Moon" is not a musical play, as its title may lead one to believe, but a comedy of everyday people in New York City.

Philip Loeb, one of the leading players in the new edition of the Theater Guild's musical revue, "Garrick Gaities," coming Monday to the Nixon, is the director of all three editions of the "Gaities." He joined the Guild in 1921.

THE WARNER SCREEN NOW EXHIBITING GOOFY WORLD

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Just Imagine," a fantastic film that puts the future on parade, is being exhibited on the Warner screen. It is comedy and novelty.

It concerns the world as the movie-makers vision it in 1930. Highballs and dinners come in pills. Airplanes park in mid-air. And people go by numbers, instead of names. This latter, however, is just an old penitentiary custom.

A TRIP TO MARS

A sideline to all this is a trip to Mars. There everyone comes in pairs, or rather twins. It is a mixture of the Jekyl-Hyde idea.

El Brendel, the comic Swede, heads the cast. He always was funny in the past and take it from us he is funny in the future. Other players include Maureen O'Sullivan, John Carrick, Marjorie White, Hobart Bosworth and Frank Albertson.

FANTASTIC SETTINGS

The production was conceived by the song-writing trio, De Sylva, Brown and Henderson. It has plenty of comedy lines and tuneful melodies. There also is a romantic angle.

However, it is the novelty of the thing that arouses interest. Its fantastic and elaborate settings intrigue. And if you think you're living in a goofy world now go and see how it will be 50 years hence.

Assemblyman M'Kay Weds Oil City Girl

GROVE CITY, Pa., Nov. 28.—Announcement is made of the marriage in Oil City of Miss Mary Gladys Forrester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Forrester, West Main street, and State Assemblyman Ray W. McKay, of this city. Rev. W. K. Crosby, of Oil City, officiated.

LORETTA YOUNG FILM, POWELL IN ENRIGHT

The Enright presented a new show yesterday, marking that theater's change from Friday to Thursday as its opening day. The current bill features "The Truth About Youth" on the screen and Dick Powell's "Harvest Moon" on the stage.

"The Truth About Youth" stars Loretta Young. As its title indicates it is a story of the young bloods who live well, if not always too wisely. It is based on the stage play, "When We Were 21."

Conway Tearle, who hasn't been seen here since he was stranded in the ice in "The Lost Zeppelin," is prominent in the cast. Other players include David Manners and Myrna Loy.

Ed and Morton Beck, comedy lads, and Aileen and Norman Selby, dancers, are featured in the stage show, which also includes songs by Mr. Powell.

Good ev'g, Gentlewomen and Gentlemen (as you all are laughingly called), and those who sim-pire detest gossip, but who listen to it just the same. Our guestar is Miss Fannie Brice, the star of "Sweet and Low," now current at Chanin's Forty-sixth St. Theater . . . Among other things that make some conversationalists seem more interesting than they really are is the chatter that the J. Barrymores (Dolores Costello) are uh-huh . . . That Jane Lee, of the once renowned Lee Kids, has grown up enough to be adored by a sweeten-hearten christened M. Charleston, and that Mary Pickford wasted a lotta time changing the name of her niece from Mary to Gwynne to avoid confusion . . . As L. Hall, the Photoplayer, points out—when Jack Pickford middle-aisled it with Mary Mulhern (once of the Ziegfeld choir), her name also became Mary Pickford.

It will no doubt please her admirers to learn that Greta Garbo has a good reason for having fewer friends in Hooeywood than any other resident . . . Greta, it appears abhors so-called pals who violate her confidences and who use her name when they are interviewed. Greta urges her friends never to reveal anything about her private affairs to the press and when anyone fails her she does what you would do—she drops them from her list . . . That is why, take it from those who ought to know, Greta and Lilyan Tashman and Fifi Dorsay are as far apart these days as Z is from A.

There has been some idle divorce chatter in the movie mags concerning the James Rennies (Dorothy Gish) . . . They point out that James is holidaying in Yurrup, while Dorothy is in Connecticut with her mother . . . Dorothy is in Connecticut serving as nurse and companion to her ailing parent, and there is no greater devoted trio than Lil and Dot Gish and their mother—their own story packing more drama than any play or screen epic in which those stars have appeared.

Evelyn Sather, of "The New Yorkers" show, is supposed to have had it altar'd quietly the other day . . . Venita Gould is still in circulation . . . The Jack Haleys (Flo McFadden), who middle-aisled it at Agua Caliente during the hot spell, had the handcuffs locked and cemented this time at St. Malachy's the other day, but so secretly . . . Fred Allen, of "Three's a Crowd," who was best man, is really christened John Florence Sullivan, and you had beterr not make any cracks, either.

If you think you are having it too tough go to the children's ward at Bellevue and watch the group of Boy Scouts go through their drills—in their wheel chairs! . . . Broadway now has a new "type" . . . Resembling Rip Van Winkle, he peddles horoscopes, which brings a heavier profit, he says, than apples . . . Fifi Dorsay and Clarance Stroud (who is being freed already) are on fire . . . Buffalo has the Big Idea. It only permits war vets to peddle apples on corners, and a former mayor provides the stuff, permitting the lads to pocket all income.

If it something different you are seeking for a parlor pastime then become a Liptogrammatist . . . A Liptogrammatist, you dope, is a letter-droper. That is, a poet who writes poems with one of the letters of the alphabet entirely excluded. Here is a stanza to illustrate this:

And tax his fancy's might,
To quiz in vain, for 'tis most plain
That what I say is right.

Here you find four lines of verse with every letter in the alphabet except "e," yet "e" is the most indispensable letter of them all, being much more frequently used than any other. Now, go ahead. Get clever.

Hollywood anticipates the following weddings in the fall: Billie Dove and Howard Hughes, Mary Philbin and "Big Boy" Williams, Lew Ayres and Lola Lane, and Helen Ferguson and a Beverly Hills banker tagged Hargreaves, which is a name that sounds better when applied to stage butlers . . . The contagious-looking Agnes Hill is at the Warwick with spine trouble, due to a fall from a horse in the park—the florists probably will thank me . . . As will the not-so-slender femmes when they learn that Joan Crawford's scheme for keeping thin is merely abstaining from potatoes and bread and butter.

A group of songsmiths were talking shop early in the yawning in a coffee place and these facts were most interesting. The biggest sheet-music sale was reached by "Till We Meet Again," which peddled four million copies. The next big smash ditty was "Beautiful Ohio," which sold only three millions. Other chunes that went over the two million mark included "Missouri Waltz," "Tuck Me to Sleep in My Old Kentucky Home," and "The End of a Perfect Day."

All these numbers sold twice as many copies as "Yes, We Have No Bananas," which was hummed, whistled or sung all over the world. In fewer words, song-writing history proves that sentiment not only outsells comedy songs, but outlives them!

I trust that whatever actors, actresses or theatrical managers are listening in will be properly stifled by the remarks of that esteemed critic, Walter Pritchard Eaton, who said that one may dismiss the oft-heard sneers of painters, actors and writers who argue that the critics are those who tried to paint, act or write and failed.

Painters, actors, writers and musicians are seldom good critics because they are too interested in the technical process and are too narrow in their viewpoint.

The critic reacts to the finished product—it is not his job to teach the craft!

Mrs. Percy K. Hudson and Larry Benson did not wed it appears. Larry, however, called this desk desperately one midnight for the address of a parson.

What's all this I hear about Marilyn Miller and Adele Astaire having a hair-pulling match back stage at "Smiles?" Girls!

Oop! There goes the timekeeper's hand warning that my time is up. I remain, as usual, That Winchell Person, who is going to be shot by gangsters next January—in the third act of a play, which I hope proves as good as Mr. Ziegfeld's "Smiles."

Cold Hampers Work Of Clearing Wreck

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—More than 200 workmen labored in near zero weather five miles east of here to clear the tracks of the Columbus and Richmond-Cincinnati branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, blocked when 23 loaded cars of two freight trains piled up.

A loaded coal car of a westbound freight split a switch and cars from that train shot into another freight going east. Nobody was injured, but officials said damage would amount to several thousand dollars.

Old Cossack Song.

The Don Cossack Russian Male Chorus sang a long concert in Syria Mosque last night to a large audience, which cheered and stamped its approval after each song. Thirty-six soldiers, in blouse, red-striped breeches, and boots, enter the stage with military step; Serge Jaroff, perhaps an "Austin" among conductors, but equipped with a mighty dynamo, leaps to his stand, and without giving any further sign, the singing begins. The rigors of that prison camp where these singing Cossacks were prisoners of war could not have been too tragic with such music as entertainment.

J. Fred Lissfelt

They chose their program from church, folk and soldier songs. There can be no favorite songs among their offerings, for, in spite of the similarity in Russian choral music, these singers give each composition striking individuality. With voices that are comparable only to the deepest tones of an organ and others which, with their perfected falsetto, admirably imitate the warmest tones of a soprano, the chorus can successfully accomplish most unexpected effects. The antiphonal singing of the church music, the simple humor of their folk tunes, and the wild abandon of their soldier songs, with whistling and yelling interjected, and gave us most original pictures, fundamentally different from any music brought us by any other Russian choir.

After several songs, one looked no longer for delicate nuances and gentle transitions from mood to mood. There is barbaric temperament at the basis of this singing, and its chief characteristic is its primitive force.

When the concert was finished, and the audience refused to leave the hall, the chorus sang a dance tune, while two of their number leaped into a rousing pas-de-deux, a most stimulating climax to a Thanksgiving Day program.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

STOCK MARKET DIPS IN DULL TRADING

Rail Shares Drag General List to Lower Ground on Unusually Light Turnover

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The rail shares coasted downgrade with the brakes off in today's stock market, dragging the rest of the list after them.

Trading was unusually light, however, and most of the prominent industrial shares resisted the decline after getting down a point or two. With only a day and a half between the holiday and the week-end, speculative interest was at low ebb.

Business news appearing over the holiday seemed a shade more cheerful. Building contracts awarded during the third week of the month were substantially higher than during either of the first two weeks. Electric power consumption for the week showed a gain of one-fifth of 1 per cent from the previous week. October railway operating income reports continued to show improvement over September, with an aggregate decline of less than 25 per cent from the like month a year ago, as compared to September's drop of about 30 per cent from that month in 1929.

Publication of a statement by Charles C. Paulding, vice president of the New York Central, describing the present predicament of the railroads as serious as that which faced them in 1920, and demanding sweeping revision of the transportation act, appeared to have provided impetus to the decline of the carrier issues.

Mr. Paulding's assertion that the present difficulties of the carriers are due to fundamental changes in transportation, rather than the temporary effects of the business depression, tended to dissipate any cheer which might have been extracted from the October earnings reports.

The recent decline in railroad bonds has been an unsettling development. Illinois Central management estimated final quarter net at about $450,000 over the like period of last year which would lift the year's earnings above the minimum New York bank law requirement. In the case of Missouri Pacific, net for the common stock, after regular preferred dividends, aggregated $3.64 for the first 10 months. The situation is obscured, however, by the large accumulation of unpaid dividends on the preferred.

Call money was appreciably tighter, but this was regarded as more encouraging than otherwise, as it presumably indicated an increasing demand for funds for the holiday trade. Loans held officially at 2 per cent, and no concessions were available in the outside market, where funds have recently gone, beginning at 1 per cent.

Stock Exchange Topics

Little Encouragement Contained in Weekly Steel Summaries.

Those bullish on the steel shares found little in the way of nourishment in the weekly trade summaries beyond the fact that most producers are in agreement in their belief that improvement is definitely in prospect. Mill operations for the country as a whole are reported off to 41 per cent of capacity, against 43 per cent last week, and the industry is satisfied now that inactivity will continue to characterize the final month of the year. Railroad and motor company buying is still expanding, and considerable volume of new business is piling up from public works projects being put forward. It seems, however, that recent movement by companies to quote firm on prices for first quarter delivery has brought mixed changes, with some products up $1 a ton and others off $1 to $2 a ton from recently prevailing quotations.

There are some people in Wall Street who evidently are not going to be surprised in the event that something big develoipes in the eastern railroad situation in the near future. At any rate, it is understood in quarters usually well informed on railroad matters that railroads in this area have pretty well ironed out their programs of consolidations. In such quarters it is believed that early announcement may be expected of the consummation of plans for the distribution of existing railroad properties into four large systems. Still, it is known that several groups have under consideration plans for the establishment of a fifth trunk line and there has been nothing of late to indicate any move by those behind this move to drop their project.

Weakness that has been cropping out in foreign markets from time to time is ascribed in a large way to the approach of time for settlements on contracts. Such settlements abroad are not carried through on a daily basis such as employed in American markets. Rather, settlements are made for most part on a bi-monthly or monthly basis. In London, for example, settlements are made on a fortnightly basis, while in Berlin and at Milan such settlements are completed once a month. It has been pointed out that the several failures recorded in Paris recently coincided with the settlement date there, thus indicating that in all probability much of the selling at Berlin and Milan in the last few days has been influenced by the approach of settlement dates at those centers.

Judging from reports received from certain large brokerage houses, many stocks are being accumulated, but selling still is large. That is offset partly by the buying back of stocks by persons who hold them for tax purposes up to 30 days ago. Considerable short selling continues, as every trader is not convinced that the market is at the bottom. The same brokerage houses say that distress selling is at low ebb.

Several Wall Street brokerage firms report that there is an increase in common stock orders from various countries of Europe. Many of these are purely investment orders, but there is also some speculative business, particularly on the part of French, Dutch and English accounts. Quantity is not important yet, but it is interesting that some of these sources of business have not touched the market in this country since the summer of 1929. Some of our best rail shares are favored purchases, but there is a fair springling of industrial orders as well.

Opinions in the motor industry still are mixed. Talk in some quarters indicates a substantial increase in production next year, but some important authorities are not inclined to make predictions beyond the first quarter. They maintain that the results in 1931 will depend to a great extent on the reception given new models. However, it is considered certain that the first few months of next year will bring a larger output and more business for those supplying the motor industry.

WALL STREET HEARS

That recent orders for locomotives have brought some buying in the railway equipment shares, although orders are still well below a year ago.

That substantial improvement is expected in the steel industry after the turn of the year, although trade circles look for nothing spectacular.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Curb traders came back to a dull and drooping market today. Professionals exploring for soft spots found the oils submissive to pressure, and also had fair success with the utilities. Industrials were dull and generally steady.

TRADE PROBLEM IS TO REABSORB MAN POWER

Economy and Lower Costs to Rule Successful Firms As Depression Wave Ends

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—From present indications, the outstanding successes of the next few years will be achieved by business executives who accept the current mandate for economy and lower costs.

Beneath the surface, important progress has already been achieved by enterprising managers, who have boldly attacked the fresh problem of adjusting their operations to the new price level. They and their companies seem destined to pass concerns headed by inert executives, who are sitting by idly talking about adverse conditions and letting valuable time elapse without decisive action.

Mr. Rukeyser

REABSORB MAN POWER

The plain truth is that during the prolonged upswing prior to June, 1929, business was so flourishing many inefficiencies crept into operations. Executives were too busy filling orders to scrutinize operations and concentrate on eliminating economic waste. Alert management in industrial and public utility corporations and in the banks have already gone a good ways toward meeting the new needs of the time, and is of the opinion that .. can go still further. The tragedy of the readjustment lies in the fact it has disturbed from employment men who need and want to work, and the larger problem of management is to reabsorb the manpower of the country.

After the adjustment has been completed, there can—and doubtless will be—genuine prosperity, probably based on a commodity price level substantially below last year's peak, but possibly somewhat above the lowest prices of 1930. As soon as business men have confidence that prices have been stabilized at any level, they will indulge in a greater amount of forward buying, and business will go ahead on a larger volume.

The virtual completion of plans for the creation of New York's fourth largest bank out of a merger among the Manufacturers Trust Company, Public National Bank and Trust Company, the Bank of United States and the International Trust Company is concrete evidence of the distinct willingness of New York financiers to work together in the general interest, in times of readjustment.

CASE DRAFTED FOR JOB

J. Herbert Case, who will resign as chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank, of New York, to head the new institution, was at first reluctant to leave his present post, which he has held only for a few months. As a matter of fact, Case, in whose character and ability the New York banking fraternity has the highest confidence, was drafted for his new job. Eugene Meyer, Jr., governor of the Federal Reserve Board, it is understood, helped to persuade Case to take the new job.

The market has disclosed considerable uneasiness on the part of Bank of United States shareholders as to how they will come out in the new shuffle. The new bank, it is understood, will pay $10,000,000 for the resources and good will of the Bank of United States, which has 1,010,000 shares of stock outstanding.

The directors of two important public utility corporations have formally put their stamp of approval on the desire of the active managers to announce further voluntary rate cuts.

GARAGE POINTS WAY

The great need of the country is to put the unemployed back to work. A garage owner in uptown New York is to be commended for his initiative in advertising that he will garage and service six cars free of charge until June 1, 1931, if six owners will engage six high class chauffeurs in the garage who unavoidably lost their jobs.

"Are you sure you told him it was me, Miss X, callin'?"

The Gillespie butler icily assured her that he was—that he had.

"Well—will you take a message to him? Tell him I said I got to hear from him right away—it's deadly important—get that? Just repeat my words—don't make up no elegant ones of your own—deadly important—he knows where to reach me—an' I said right away. . . . I'll be waitin'."

Annie lit a cigaret.

"This is some kind o' cookoo gink," she mused. "He tells me he'd croak for me an' wants to marry me, then he chances his life for that s'ciety twist—hasn' called me in two days—and won't answer when I call him."

He had been in a hyena humor.

He had snarled out to her everything how McClosky had been insanely desperate enough to invade the stronghold of B B himself, kill two of his men, wound old Pete and kidnap his $100,000 hostage. Alice Schuyder; how the McClosky gorillas had attacked his crack waterfront forces and killed Biff Glasson and four of his mob and wounded a dozen more. He had grinned, too, like a hyena—only as he told her he had stolen back his $1,000,000 in smuggled and pirated heroin and Glasson had knifed Cyclone Tim to death, and the boys had put away forever five of Tim's River Rats.

Silk Wants Revenge

"What about that Gillespie punk?" Silk demanded.

Freeman himself had no knowledge that Tommy had been shot in the leg in the raid on his windowless apartment fortress. Annie knew nothing of it either.

"So s'pose, Annie, that the swaddler smells somethin'—that he's duckin' you?"

"I can't imagine what or why could of officed him. We was gettin' on copesettee. H-he wasn't by any chance in any o' that fightin' aroun' on Cherry street was he?" and she tried to disguise a glance of anxiety.

"No. What'd he have to do with that? McClosky was in with the Gillespies to fight the truckin' racket, but the Gillespies weren't in with McClosky on hi-jackin' my dope.

"Annie, you got to get that sucker back again. He goes on the spot. An' you got to put him there."

Freeman raised his voice:

"I'll get him an' knock him off if I have to surround his house on all four sides, batter down the doors with typewriters and rush in 50 guys to croak him in his old man's arms. After the way he raided my home, if I let that stooge live I don't think old Pete himself would talk to me. An' I wouldn't blame him.

"Gee, Silk—I had this college cub all but in the bag, I told you. Gimme another couple o' days anyways."

Tom Phones Annie

* * *

Tommy Gillespie lay in bed. His fever was subsiding. The trifling wound in his leg was not as simple as it had seemed. The lead had poisoned him with strange vindictiveness. The medico couldn't understand it. But he had caught it young and had been able to neutralize it.

Any illiterate gangster might have explained it to the learned surgeon. The bullet had been coated with garlic, a trick worthy of only a rattlesnake or a gunman.

Cyclone Tim had planted suspicion in the young fellow's heart at a turn when it was so gorged with love for the red-headed mystery that the ground was least fertile for hostile thoughts of her. A hundred times he had asked himself: Would this woman kiss him as she had to lure him to a dirty death for that dirty killer, Silk Freeman? He had refused to answer her calls until he could decide. Her message might be bona fide or a frantic subterfuge.

Youth is trusting and love is disarming.

Tommy Gillespie sat up in bed. He slid his feet over the side, sneaked to the telephone and called. Annie answered.

"This is Mr. X.," he whispered.

"Oh, perfect! Where've you—why haven't you—where'll I meet you, when?"

"Half an hour—our place."

"Check."

Tommy closed his door, dressed quietly, reached a side door, and, in defiance of his doctor's orders, left the house. He whistled for a taxi. His wounded leg forbade driving.

* * *

"See?" said Annie, as she put down the hand set. "I haven't lost him."

"H'mmm—with you it's still maybe; with me it's absolutely. I told you before—hook me this fish an' land him, or I'll wade in and gaff him."

"I got to doll up, B. B. No time to give you no argument. I'm on my way to work."

"Oh, in the lobby o' the Astor—I'm afraid you wouldn't wanna make that the spot."

"Well—after that? Why not wash this up tonight?"

"I can't tell you—yet. I guess I can steer him. But I got to make him think he's steerin' me—see? I could 'phone you——"

"Oke. Call home. Pete'll know where to reach me. Allow me half an hour an' I'll have a couple o' trusty lads wherever you say."

"That is, if I can get him on a soft spot—like you said, where the getaway looks right for your boys."

"Say, I'm so steamed up—well, maybe you're right. It's Gillespie's pup, an' there might be a holler, so it won' hurt to play a bit safe."

Annie was making up her lips as only she knew how.

"Leave him to Annie," she sang out with a smile that was distorted by the lipstick, but was still plenty of smile. "When Annie goes fishin' it's just like when she goes shootin'—she gets her man."

Silk Indifferent

"Gee, you old," gasped Freeman, as he crossed the floor and slid his slender, strong arms around her, put his cheek against hers and looked at the picture of them in the mirror. "I've been damn busy lately, Chicago—but I ain't been out o' my mind much. As soon as we clean up this Yale yap, you an' I'll take a spin down to Atlantic City for a few days—an'—wow!"

"Astor Hotel," she ordered.

The driver let her out at the Forty-fifth street side. She left him with the fare she tossed him. She saw him start up the west-bound way. She crossed through Peacock alley, ignoring the glances and smirks of ambitious mashers, tripped out the Forty-fourth street door up to the waiting east-bound cab, and whispered "Victory Hotel."

* * *

The Big Boy had received the flash of Biff Glasson's finish in the waterfront battle of the two Goliaths, when Glasson and Cyclone Tim McClosky each killed the other—with stolid, stoic indifference.

Greed for Gold

"Just too bad about them hoodlums!", he sneered, and turned a cold, steely gaze on his lieutenant. "What about the dope—is it planted?"

"All unloaded an' salted in Millie Germaine's joint on 'Cocaine Row'," chuckled the other, a nattily dressed little heel, with restless, thumb-tack eyes. Then: "Not one ounce missing."

"Oke," grunted Silk, lighting a cigaret and flicking ashes on his priceless Chinese rug. "Somebody's got to pay off for all this doin's. An' the guys who'll settle this trip are the cokies an' the dopies who pick up this stuff. I gotta get mine for my grief."

"Sure, boss," smiled the other. "Sure about what? I'm talkin'," stormed Freeman. "Instead o' mixing that junk with 10 per cent o' bicarbonate, like we always do—mix this with 40 per cent—now say 'sure'."

"Forty per cent," whistled the other. "We're goin' to get a fierce kickback on that."

"You heard me!"—and Silk's word was final. The stooge bowed and blew, and Silk arose and strolled toward his desk, muttering to himself:

"It won't take much figgerin to see that I stand to make plenty on the junk with a fifty-fifty divvy."

What if there would be lamentations from the cheated heroin addicts? They'd come back on Silk's dope distributors—on Nutsy Flemmen and others like him. Let Nutsy worry. Freeman got his money in advance.

He was himself again as the avaricious gleam settled in his eyes, and for the moment even Polack Annie and Tommy Gillespie and Alice Schuyder and his passions of love and hatred gave way before his driving greed—for gold.

DAILY TRUE STORY—A Good Cake

Doreen applied the last bit of icing to her cake and stood back to gaze at it jubilantly. She felt quite gay and excited. At least—after repeated bitter failures—a successful angel food cake! What if her pies were marvels of luscious flakiness, her doughnuts crisply brown and light, and her sunshine cakes always lived up to their name! It was an angel food cake that she was now determined to achieve—a fluffy tender angel food that would make Ted gobble up at least four big pieces quicker than a wink and clamor for more.

Instead, every one of her former efforts along the angel food line had resulted in a pastry or tough or gooey something that had prompted Ted to exclaim amusedly, "Aha, angel food? Eat this and join the angels!" or some other quip equally moss-covered and stinging.

Cake Stolen

However, in spite of his characteristic remarks, she had doggedly tried again and again. But this morning, recalling guiltily the total loss of countless egg whites and cake flour, not to mention sugar and almond flavoring, that had gone into the departed inglorious failures, she had vowed grimly to the oven door as she softly closed it, "If this cake doesn't turn out absolutely perfect, I'll never try to bake another angel food! Never!"

But now, oh miracle! here it was at last—a perfect one, she knew—what Ted would surely call a "corker." She was carrying it proudly to the pantry when the bell rang. Hurriedly she set it upon the sill of the open porch window. Ted came home at 1 o'clock—it was Saturday—ate escalloped potatoes and cold tongue and salad.

"Now, Ted," rising swiftly, "for dessert you're going to have a real treat. A perfect angel food! I know it's simply like nothing you ever ate!"

"Because—why, because it looks it! And the icing is a dream! Just wait till you taste it, Mr. Dark-Cloud!" She arrived at the pantry window in time to see—was it possible—Wallie Tasker, the nice son of respected next-door neighbors, bolting off with her cherished creation. Not towards his home, but cutting across the empty lot on the other side.

"Ted! Hurry — chase after Wallie Tasker! He's running off with my cake! O-oh, what won't I do to him!" breathing tearful vengeance.

Scolds Wallie

"Calm down, Dorrie," advised Ted. "He'll be punished enough eating that angel food. Never mind, honey," warned by the icy flash in her eyes. "I'll buy a melon for dessert."

Later that afternoon when Ted returned from the barber's Doreen was waiting for him at the front gate. "Ted, Wallie's coming down the street. Wait here while I speak to him. He likes you and it will make him all the more ashamed if he has to face you too." Wallie approached leisurely, whistling as he came. Suddenly—but too late—he became aware of the two awaiting him.

"Come here, Wallie Tasker, I want to talk to you," in her severest tone. "Now, what did you mean by sneaking off with my cake this noon? Don't deny it. I saw you!" The unhappy Wallie glanced around as if contemplating flight, but manfully remained.

"I—well—sure, I took it, but I only borrowed it. Honest, Mrs. Botley. You see, us kids were playing war, and we divided into two gangs, five on each side so as to be enemies. Both sides had to go on a foraging expedition for food, like they used to do in real war. And the side that brought in the most stuff would be the winner Our side won," with a touch of braggadocio. "But of course we brought the things back again from where we took 'em—Mrs. Mann's old rooster and the potatoes from Jensen's cellar and the—"

"You didn't bring my cake back!"

"No'm," miserably. "Bud's little brother cut a chunk out of it while we were away and so, as long as he did that, we thought we'd just taste it, too, so—"

Ted Laughs

"So you ate the cake!" with something suspiciously like satisfaction in her voice. "Well, wasn't it just the best cake you ever ate?" She waited hopefully. Wallie looked swiftly at Ted, down at his shoes, back to Doreen. "Yes'm."

"There, Ted! Will you say now I can't make a good angel food?" triumphantly. She turned smilingly. "And did you boys eat all of that big cake?" a trifle eagerly.

Wallie glanced again at Ted. Perhaps it was the man-to-man twinkle in Ted's eyes that gave Wallie the courage to say what he did. "No-o mam We—we," desperately, "we threw most of it in the hole in the empty lot!"

"Ha, ha!" laughed Ted. Doreen knew a sick and murderous moment Then, chin high, she strode into the house, placed the receiver of the phone resolutely to her ear and ordered more cake flour, eggs and almond flavoring.

Fine Sentiments

Eloquent Words of President Concerning Children's Welfare Should be Followed by Action,

"If we could have but one generation of properly born, trained, educated and healthy children," exclaimed President Hoover in his eloquent address to the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection, "a thousand other problems of government would vanish."

Mr. Hoover's sentiments certainly are fine. So were the sentiments of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

But the Declaration would be nothing more in history than "the vision of doctrinaires," as Mr. Hoover's predecessor in the White House once said, had it not been for the action of the people of the colonies in resorting to arms and the guiding military genius of George Washington.

And all the fine sentiments of Mr. Hoover, and all the valuable information gathered by his conference will "become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal" unless the leadership of the federal government breathes into the body of expert knowledge created by the conference the breath of life.

President Roosevelt's conference in 1909 on the conservation of childhood justified itself. Under his vigorous leadership, action was taken that finally resulted in the establishment of the federal government of the Children's Bureau.

President Hoover's conference on child health and protection will justify itself only in the event that eloquent words are quickly followed by vigorous action.

One of the first things that the federal government can do to protect the health and promote the education of the children of the nation is to establish a Department of Education with a Secretary of Education in the President's cabinet.

This new department, long advocated by the Hearst newspapers, the National Education Association, and more than 30 other organizations, might well include a child sanitation bureau that would do at least as much to advance the welfare of American children as the Department of Agriculture has long done for American pigs and cows.

Of all their public interests, education is closer to the hearts of the American people than any other, because on it so largely depends the future of their children.

Education, therefore, ought to be on an equality with agriculture, commerce and labor in the federal system of government. And that is where the education bill now pending before Congress would put it.

Educating and training more than 27,000,000 school children now enrolled—

Expending to the best advantage nearly three thousand million dollars appropriated annually for public education—

Providing school facilities for 5,000,000 children of school age over 10 years old, who can neither read nor write—

Training 10,000,000 deficient children, more than 80 per cent of whom are suffering from handicaps that research proves can be removed or reduced—

Saving 1,000,000 children who will fail of promotion this year from failing again next year—

Neither public conversation about them nor private contributions will suffice to change them.

These conditions can only be changed by wise and concerted action on the part of all the states under the vigorous leadership of the federal government.

The conference to which President Hoover addressed his eloquent appeal for a "generation of properly born, trained, educated and healthy children" has created a vast body of knowledge as to how this can be brought about.

This ideal generation will not come nor will "a thousand other problems of government vanish" in the wake of mere words.

Establishment by the federal government now of a Department of Education that will help the state to put this knowledge into every American home is essential if the ideal of the President is to become the achievement of the nation.

The spirit of the people can do much, but it cannot do everything. It cannot take the place of vigorous leadership on the part of the government.

Expert knowledge can do much, but it cannot take the place of action, for now, as always—

Churchmen Send a Curious Letter to This Newspaper,

This letter was received yesterday:

"To the Editors of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

"Dear Sirs:

"The Pittsburgh Presbytery of the Reformed Presbyterian Church in session, October 28, 1930, voiced its protest against the wet metropolitan press in this district for its unfair treatment of the prohibition issue. A committee consisting of four ministers and three laymen was appointed to deliver this protest in person.

"We do not question your right to hold views subversive to the prohibition principle. Neither would we deny you the privilege of giving editorial expression to those views so long as they do not advocate disobedience to the law. What we do most earnestly protest against is your mis-statements and misrepresentations designed to prejudice the public against our prohibition laws.

"This appears in your unfair treatment of prohibition news. Repeatedly your paper has featured with first page headlines items unfavorable to prohibition while submerging or ignoring altogether news of outstanding value on the other side. Frequently headlines are used which are contradictory to the subject matter they cover. This seems to us a deliberate intention to deceive.

"Then this unfair attitude of your paper reveals itself in the editorial treatment of prohibition. We do not question the right of a paper to seek by lawful means the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. But we believe it unjust to hold up the prohibition law to ridicule and make it responsible for bootlegging, political corruption and other crime when the editors and everyone else know that these evils existed in an even larger measure before prohibition went into effect. It is furthermore unjust to cast discredit upon prohibition enforcement officers and class them as murderers when a rum runner happens to be killed while violating the law.

"The newspaper is a public trust and it violates that trust whenever it poisons the public mind by misrepresentation or unfair treatment of news on any public issue.

"Very sincerely yours,

"D. H. ELLIOTT, "JAMES S. TIBLY,
"E. L. McKNIGHT, "E. A. CROOKS,
"J. W. ANDERSON, "K. M. YOUNG."

If these gentlemen really believe what they say in this letter, they think Pittsburgh editors are dishonest. They are mistaken.

The Sun-Telegraph's opinions are properly set forth in editorial and cartoon. News is treated impartially. The editors try, sincerely, to be fair in the presentation of news.

Every newspaper these days knows that only by giving a square deal and fair treatment to everyone can it win success. Persons who are fanatically attached to some movement or faction invariably delude themselves into thinking that printing all the news amounts to persecution of their side.

Any normal, observant citizen will appreciate the mental attitude of the signers of this letter when he reads their statement that "the editor and everyone else knows that these evils (bootlegging, etc.), existed in an even larger measure before prohibition went into effect."

If that statement were true, or even half true, there would be no nation-wide TEMPERANCE movement today demanding a revision of the prohibition statutes.

The Limping Committee

It found out who Wickersham was.

A friend of a man who knew hearsay, one of our most reliable broadcasts of information, tells us that the Wickersham Commish was supposed to investigate booze.

The commish wasn't supposed to go out and get drunk. No. It could filibuster a little, demand referendum and recall, go into executive session, read the minutes if it could still tell time and take a standing vote that might end in a diving one.

It was a fact-finding commish. It had to subtract the answer from the result, the clues from the evidence and the testimony from the corroboration.

What percentage of our population is law-abiding? And what's his name?

Is the Eighteenth Amendment popular? WHY NOT?

During raids on speakeasies how many of the commish gave their right names?

When a member of the commish took a drink was it for science and research? Or had he gotten past that stage?

After the commish did a tough day's labor did it take a bottle along for home study?

Did the commission ever reach that crucial period in alcoholic investigation where the members tried on each other's hats?

If a man got home at dawn, threw his shoes in the aquarium, sang an operatic aria up the dumbwaiter shaft and finally went to sleep in a bureau drawer, would it be sufficient alibi if he told his wife he was official pathfinder for the Wickersham Committee?

Answer yes or no. And don't try to blame it on a ventriloquist.

PTOLEMY, GIANT OF SCIENCE

By Archibald Henderson

Among the men, only eight in number, pronounced by Bernard Shaw to be makers of universes, stands the name of Claudius Ptolemy. Although this figure emerges from the mists of antiquity as one of the pre-eminent masters in astronomical science, almost nothing is known either of his life or career. It is known that he was a native of Alexandria, but the year of his birth is unknown. He was certainly making astronomical observations as early as 127 A. D.; and he was in the full tide of his fame about the year 150. Just three centuries earlier, or about 150 B. C., flourished Hipparchus, upon whose work Ptolemy based his own remarkable system. It was a triumph of mathematical ingenuity; and the skill with which this complex system of epicycles and eccentrics was worked out remains a source of amazement, even at the present day.

The Ptolemaic theory assumes the immobility of the earth, the revolution of the sun around the earth, and the daily rotation of the whole universe around the earth as a center. It was assumed that a planet moved in a circle around an imaginary point, while this imaginary point described a circle around the earth. Ptolemy uses a system of epicycles; and it is necessary to know what an epicycle is. Suppose a motorist picks up a nail in the tire of his automobile. The head of the nail stuck in the tire traverses or describes in space a curve as the automobile travels along. This curve described by the nail head is called an epicycle. If you imagine the automobile traveling around a huge circle, the nail head describes the kind of epicycle used by Ptolemy in his work.

A simple mechanical contrivance will give a good idea of the sort of mathematical figure Ptolemy used in his astronomical system. Imagine two arms fixed to one another, each swinging freely. The circular motion of the first arm carries the second arm around with it, and all the while the second arm describes a circular motion on its own account. The figure described in space by the end of the second arm is called an epicycle or epicycloid. It is of the same general form as the apparent motions of the planets across the heavens. In modern times, the motions of the bodies in the solar system were calculated from the sun taken as center, which greatly simplified the mathematical problems involved.

It was the behavior of the lower planets, Venus and Mercury, which suggested the mechanism resorted to by Ptolemy. Each of these planets appears first on one side of the sun and then on the other; and it seemed as if each accompanied the sun in its annual journey across the sky from West to East.

As scientists say, the epicycle method "saved the phenomena" at the crucial points. But unfortunately, at other points, it exaggerated the variations in the sun's and moon's distances from the earth. After all, Ptolemy's system was a stop-gap scheme at best. If you got the answer right at one place, that threw things out of gear at other places.

As an authority, John Dreyer has well said that "the system as a whole deserves our admiration as a ready means of constructing tables of the movements of sun, moon and planets cannot be denied. Nearly in every detail (except the variations of distances of the moon) it represented geometrically these movements almost as closely as the simple instruments then in use enabled observers to follow them, and it is a lasting monument to the great mathematical minds by whom it was gradually developed. It appears from many statements, not only of Ptolemy himself, but also of his commentators, that they merely considered the numerous circles as a convenient means of calculating the positions of the planets."

Although the Almagest on Syntaxis of Ptolemy contains results which are erroneous, and his system was only a very ingenious approximation, it was not displaced for about 14 centuries. The original edition of Ptolemy's writings, in Latin, did not appear until the year 1515. Only 28 years appeared the famous De Revolutionibus of Copernicus. Ptolemy was displaced from the throne where he had reigned for so many centuries in favor of the new monarch, Copernicus.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Darn that hang-nail! It's gotten my goat 50 times a today.

Funny things—hang-nails. Hardly any size, but they can make your whole body miserable. And gum up a day's performance. Yet they're nothing but a scrap of skin that has lost contact with your main hide and dried up into a nuisance.

They were like everyone else to begin with—just as that hang-nail was once regular skin. Warm and eager and supple—WHILE THEY WERE IN CIRCULATION. Then something happened, that put them out of circulation. Some grief, perhaps. Or a loss or shock. Or they did something to be ashamed of. Or perhaps they just grew discouraged. Whatever it was, it cut them off. Cut them off from the enthusiasm and excitement of other human beings—from healthy conflicts and competitions—from all those quickening contacts that affect us, unconsciously, when we're living normally . . . from those contacts that stir us up and keep us alive.

So they dried up. They didn't know they were drying up. They realized, perhaps, that they were thinking more about themselves. Taking things harder. Feeling lonelier and meaner and more tired of life every day. But they didn't realize that this was turning their characters into festering thorns that snagged, every time life touched them. But it was—

You've seen them. You know them. There's at least one Human Hang-nail in your office, in your family. And they get your goat—how they get your goat! Making life miserable for themselves and everyone else. Can't say a word without offending them. Why they act if they were the only people on earth—

As a matter of fact, they think they ARE. They've lost contact so much that they've clean forgotten about the other fellow. They can't feel him. They can't feel the things that happen to him. They can only feel the things that happen to themselves. Naturally they consider such things the Main Events in human history.

That's what happens to people when they cut themselves from life. You don't have to be nutty to get that way. You just need to be cut off. It can happen to anyone. It can happen to you. It has happened to you. You've had spells like that, when everything seemed wrong. The only thing that was wrong was YOU. You'd rambled off by yourself and turned into a hang-nail.

IF YOU WANT TO STAY REGULAR, STAY IN CIRCULATION. Stay with the gang and take your chance with it. It won't always be easy or pleasant. Other people jostle us, bother us, double cross us sometimes—make us mad. But that's all good for us. It keeps us stirred up.

IF YOU AREN'T STIRRED UP, YOU'LL WITHER UP. YOU'LL BECOME A HANG-NAIL.

Isn't It So?

Text for Today One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to enquire in his temple.—Psalms, xxv: 4.

Writing in Japan

JAPANESE CHILDREN LEARNING THEIR DIFFICULT WRITING.

Japanese writing, which is in reality the drawing of innumerable complicated characters, is a task that many people in our country would find impossible. The amazing thing is that Japanese perseverance overcomes the difficulty.

Chinese writing is even more difficult, being more highly developed than the writing of Japan, which to our western eyes resembles the Chinese.

In 26 letters, easily learned in childhood, all the world's literature is open. And all of the language can be written.

However, we should not be too proud of ourselves. The Japanese might well ask us, "Why don't you adopt the metric system for your weights and measures, as the French do?

"Why do you insist on maintaining an obsolete, cumbersome, slow system with pounds, ounces, pennyweights, bushels, quarts, pints and all the rest of it?"

The question would be reasonable.

We have enough intelligence to apply the metric system to our dollars and cents.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Thoughts while strolling: Bankrupt sale sign: "We made a terrible mistake?" Mrs. Brock Pemberton suggests a Russian countess. Wonder if Mayor Walker can orate without saying "very definite." The best chili is usually in the most disreputable places.

Libby Holman, a Cincinnati, O., girl, who made good in the city. Movie theater front with banners like a street carnival. Grand opera nearing the end. It's screech has become a death rattle. Silvered spires like fingers clutching at the sky. Ruth Etting and Genevieve Cooper look alike.

Wish perfumes were as grand as their bottles. A derby called "The Nanz." The jaunty fawn colored ermine jackets. And Perky berets. Don Prince, Palace press agent and son of Arthur Prince, English ventriloquist. The first time I ever saw Ziegfeld wearing a white collar.

The Parisian tea room owner—Rumplemayer. The bored expression of Scotties. Not many birds dissatisfied with jobs or gets such little commendation as a letter carrier. So here's a full blown cheer for him!

Ex-cafe and movie orchestras now playing in court yards for pitched coins. Pink clouds brushing the west. I'd like to be smelling wood smoke in Missouri somehow. Montague Glass' very British accent. Adolph Zukor cries out loud at sad plays, they say. Who remembers when a kitchen was not a bar?

Tenth avenue features a hooch dancer. This way, boys, midnight session! The biting winds from the river. But soon April's laughter again and we'll whine about the humidity. Tenement women with soiled poodles under their arms.

Eager-eyed girls dancing down Broadway to disaster. The Moes and Mannies with tightly gripped cigars. Larry Fay's long face. Irene Bordoni's bangs. Ward Morehouse. Murial Kirkland's red hair. Two fashionably dressed ladies quarreling. I'll kibitz a little.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Why be so dependent upon others for amusement and entertainment?

Have you nothing within yourself upon which to draw when alone?

If you have not cultivated the habit of reading when alone, or provided time for reading in your daily regime, you have overlooked one of your greatest privileges.

If you have never enjoyed the companionship of books surrounding you in a room, you have missed a treat.

Something must be wrong with your scheme of things if enjoyment means the society of others to the exclusion of interesting reading.

The regret of most folk is that they can find so little time to read—to be alone with their books.

Try reading if you are lonely—cultivate the habit of good reading. You will find that you will seek opportunities to be alone.
